Novato, CA based company Instaledge, has stated that they will be debuting their innovative new skateboarding product on Kickstarter in mid-August. The product has been designed to allow skateboarders to perform grinds and slides on smooth metal surfaces while protecting the ledge itself from getting damaged. It is a fully portable device that can fit onto any straight ledge. It comes in two separate four foot sections that can seamlessly snap together in just a few seconds. It is hoped that skaters all over the country will enjoy it to perfect their tricks while preventing damage at the same time. Further information on the product is available from the company website on <http://instaledge.com/>

"Grinding and other tricks are some of the most basic and also the most complicated skateboarding moves around," says Gene Walt from Instaledge. "Any good skater is able to perform them, but that means they have to practice. Unfortunately, grinding in particular has the potential to cause significant damage to the ledges, which is also dangerous for the skater. Thanks to our device, both skater and the ledge itself are fully protected."

The staff at Instaledge are all skaters themselves and they have been testing a number of the prototypes to see just how well they work. Videos and pictures can be seen on <http://websta.me/n/instaledgeco> and <http://facebook.com/instaledgeco>, where it is also abundantly clear that the skating community is waiting for just this type of product. It offers a great way to enjoy the sport without fitting the stereotype of the skater being destructive at the same time.

The company has also been showing videos of the product in use on their Twitter page on <https://twitter.com/instaledgeco/status/598221008005242880>. Again, it has been very well received and people are asking when it will be available. "Where do they sell this?" says Jaskamal Singh. "We need one urgently."

While it will take a few more weeks before the product is available to the general public, many people have already contacted Instaledge to ask whether they can put their name down for a few ledges. It is thought that the product will end up being as popular as what the current feedback suggests.
