ArborTrue Tree Service, based in Kingwood TX, has announced that they have sent crews to North Carolina to help in the removal of trees from houses and other infrastructures in the aftermath of the destruction wrought by Hurricane Florence. They point out that they have pre-negotiated rates with the insurance companies to maximize the value offered to customers.

Brad Phillips, co-owner of ArborTrue Tree Service, says, "Right now our crews are sleeping in their trucks because the hotels are either full or without power or flooded. Access to Wilmington is cut off, thus we are still waiting for access. In the mean time the crew are in Fayetteville."

The storm crews of ArborTrue Tree Service are considered to be specialists with technical rigging, cranes, and downed electrical lines. They have been in communication with the Department of Transportation to get access to restricted areas so that they can offer help. According to Brad Phillips, "We often clear roads where we go in order to allow Fire, EMS, and Police to pass through."

Brad Phillips adds, "These guys are roughing it. When they drove in two nights ago they had to shelter in place in a parking lot that was higher than surrounding areas. They slept in the trucks and woke up parked in 12" of water. They had to retreat but were trapped in place. They managed to follow state troopers beyond a barricade for escape to higher grounds. We have performed storm work in 19 states and they keep getting wetter!"

ArborTrue is a Houston Area tree service provider. They offer science-based tree care but what is needed currently in North Carolina is the removal of trees that have fallen due to the storm. They have been providing fully guaranteed tree removal services and solutions to Houston residents all across the Northern and Northeastern Houston areas. They are now using that experience in helping remove trees in backyards to help put things in order for homes and commercial establishments in North Carolina.

Fallen trees have to be removed for a number of reasons. They could be blocking important pathways in the backyard or home. Also, they could become infested with harmful pathogens that could be dangerous for the other healthy trees in the area. Fallen trees and even those damaged trees after the storm could be a threat to the safety of the home and its residents.

ArborTrue Tree Service has a five star reputation in the industry. They point out that they have always worked hard in order to earn that reputation. They have always made sure that their service personnel are competent, knowledgeable and experienced. Furthermore, the company makes sure that staff are constantly trained and are kept abreast of the latest developments regarding the industry. And they always ensure that proper care and caution are always exercised in order to minimize risks.

ArborTrue Tree Service offers various kinds of tree service and these are: tree removal, tree trimming, stump grinding, and tree cabling and bracing. The tree removal service is what the crews sent to North Carolina are now offering to homeowners with fallen trees in their homes. Meanwhile, tree trimming is often necessary to ensure that trees, especially their branches, won't accidentally hit electrical wires.

For those trees that have been cut, the stump that have been left may need to be removed perhaps because the homeowner is experiencing some kind of problem due to that stump or wants to build something on that location. This is where the stump grinding services from ArborTrue come in.

ArborTrue Tree Service has several highly skilled, trained and certified arborists who can determine whether sick or dying trees can be nurtured back to health whenever it is possible. Since trees are a vital part of the environment, ArborTrue prefers to avoid tree removal as much as possible. Thus, tree removal will be done only when it is absolutely necessary because the fallen tree is found to be dangerous to the property and to people. Such conditions may likely be found in North Carolina so that tree removal may need to be done in various homes and other locations.

ArborTrue Tree Service is focused on providing affordable tree care and they can even provide a free estimate. Brad Phillips, who is the co-owner and lead arborist, has been in the industry for 15 years. He holds several certifications, including the ISA (International Society of Arboriculture) Arborist Certification. Aply assisting him are co-owner and consulting arborist Brandon Murphy and consulting arborist Brittany Bates.
