FineAwards.com, a company that designs and produces awards and corporate gifts based in Hollywood, Florida, has recently announced they are taking orders for custom crystal awards. The company says they have streamlined the ordering process into three simple steps from concept to production making it easier for customers to get the quality awards they need for their special event.

Jeff Klein from FineAwards.com said, "We've made the ability to Design Your Crystal Award from start to finish as easy as 1-2-3. Our custom award builders will translate your vision into unique, sought-after custom awards and corporate gifts featuring the finest crystal, glass, or acrylic."

The first step in the process is for the customer to share their vision for their award. During this time, the customer will work with the FineAwards.com design team to collaborate on award ideas. The customer's budget, quantity needed, and deadline will also help the design team narrow down the type of award that would work best. The customer will need to share any logo, images, and personalized text they would like added to the award.

"Our customers are always surprised how quickly our team responds to their custom award requests and the ideas we come up with," Klein says. "Because of our team's experience working with companies large and small, they have great instincts for knowing what works best. No matter how big or small your idea, they're fantastic at making it unique to the client. Of course, our clients are more than welcome to browse our Custom Crystal Gallery to see some of the amazing custom awards we've created in the past."

The second step is to get a sketch approved based on the customer's concept. Once the concept is decided upon after discussion with the design team, they will get started creating a sketch based on the final ideas. Award companies often charge for this, but FineAwards.com understands this is a necessary part of the custom design process.

Klein says, "So many things go into creating a one-of-a-kind award. We're just as excited as you to see it come together, which is why we don't charge for putting the design together. We give you time to select the shape, color, and size so you can make all the adjustments you need before we go into production. Once all of the adjustments have been made, then we'll charge you per piece based on all approved requirements. The price will include all the personalization agreed upon by the client."

The last step in the custom award design process is to approve a sample through either an online image or a physical sample. Details on production, including shipping costs, will be made at this time. Once approved, the awards are produced, customized, and packaged in high-end presentation boxes before being shipped to the customer.

"We have been exceeding expectations for many years, so we know exactly what works for our clients," Klein says. "In fact, we're so confident in our work, our CEO Seth A. Fine offers a 110% Service Promise. We guarantee your awards will arrive on time, with your perfect art, and shipped safely, all for a competitive price. We proudly stand behind everything we do."

With over 40 years of combined experience on its staff, FineAwards.com has gained a positive reputation for designing and manufacturing unique awards for Fortune 500 companies, sports franchises and charities around the world including Apple, Pepsi, Google, NFL, MLB, NBC, FedEx and many more. The company's brand of respect and professionalism has garnered them hundreds of 5-Star Reviews.

Richard R. said, "I would like to sing the praises of Chantal Eckert with whom I interfaced before, during and after my order was completed. She has been nothing but the picture of great customer service. Her attitude, eagerness to help and follow-up are to be especially commended. After a lifetime in the customer service field, it is rare to find someone as helpful and caring as Chantal and I will ask for her every time I place an order with FineAwards. Thank you, Chantal."
