October 09, 2018

October 09, 2018 -
Perseverance Pest Control in Fishers, Indiana, has announced that they are currently providing pest control services that will help homeowners to get ready for fall. The company says that they are now accepting requests for consultations from homeowners who want to prepare their homes for the fall season by eliminating spiders and mice.

Sarah Wenger, a representative for the company says, "We get a lot of call during the first part of fall from homeowners who have tons of spiders all over the place. We want to help to eliminate those spiders, particularly the more dangerous ones and help those homeowners to enjoy the autumn season."

Wenger says that spiders are in Indiana during this time of year basically searching for shelter from the coming winter. She says that many of those spiders will enter homes and offices in order to stay warm. The company says that there are numerous ways to prevent spiders from entering the home but when a fall infestation happens, it often takes a professional to clear all of them out.

"First, we always ask our clients to thoroughly clean the exteriors of their home through power washing or just washing with a garden hose," says Wenger. "If you can, it's good to knock down any outside spider webs that you may see to keep them from entering the home."

Wenger says that once this is done, Perseverance Pest Control will handle the rest. She says that the company will spray around door openings, windows and any cracks that are seen to keep spiders from entering the home from outdoors. She states that many pest control companies miss spraying the foundation of the home, which is often where spiders enter.

Perseverance Pest Control states that they use a power sprayer to ensure that all cracks and crevices in addition to the entire foundation of the home are treated. The power sprayer is a machine that sprays the chemicals that are used to kill and repel spiders. Pest control technicians walk around the exterior of the structure, spraying and treating the structure and a specified radius around the structure to kill and repel spiders in flower beds and other areas around the home. The pressurized system allows for technicians to also treat soil and landscaping around the home for a more complete barrier.

Wenger says that in addition to this treatment and prevention of spiders, the company can also provide protection from mice infestations for Indiana homes. She says that they will thoroughly inspect the homes to determine where mice are entering and then plug those spots to keep them from getting in. The company offers information and advice on their website for homeowners that includes tips on how to prevent mice from infesting yards, as well. The company says that mice will climb into homes around water pipes and in other areas that homeowners may not even consider. Wenger says that homeowners should contact the pest control company the instant that they believe that they have an infestation of mice. She says that the sooner they can control the problem, the sooner homeowners can get back to their mice free lives.

The company says that anyone who has questions or concerns about treating their homes for fall should contact them to schedule a consultation. They state that they will send out specialists to inspect homes and offer advice on the most feasible steps for treating the home against these issues. The company states that they have been in business in Fisher for a number of years and have a qualified and experienced staff of technicians who can check the home or office for any signs of infestation and alert the customer on what needs to be done to clear up those issues.

The company was recently featured on the Hired or Fired segment of Fox59's show. The show, titled "Fox Britt Baker Hired or Fired?" featured Perseverance Pest Control working with news anchor Britt Baker to see if the newswoman has what it takes to work as a pest control technician. The company states that it was a fun recording and says that they hope all of their customers will watch the episode.
