

Adam Elements? Flash Drive Compatible with the iPhone Xs

October 01, 2018

October 01, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Adam Elements, a global leader in flash storage solutions and consumer electronics, is proud to announce that their iKlips DUO+ is fully compatible with the new iPhone Xs. It is a convenient storage device that allows iOS users to free up space on their phone or tablet. Users can secure personal data and take it anywhere with the iKlips DUO+.

The iKlips DUO+ is an Apple MFi certified device that features a lightning connector and USB-A allowing to transfer content between an iPhone or iPad to a Mac or PC. Its lightning connector has a reading speed of 25 MB/s and the USB-A a reading speed of up to 130 MB/s. The iKlips DUO+ delivers 32GB, 64GB and 128GB capacity allowing users to automatically back up their camera roll, contacts, social media and more.

The A? Design Award Winner, iKlips DUO+, features an ergonomic design that fits any mobile device protection case due to its extended lightning connector. With just a swivel people can take pictures, save data, transfer, backup and more across different devices.

The iKlips DUO+ features an intuitive app that launches when the iKlips is plugged into an iPhone or iPad.

The app offers users a camera function to shoot and save photos and videos directly to the drive instead of taking up space on their mobile device. The iKlips app is always being revamped to offer users new and fresh features while keeping it user-friendly. The app also includes encryption software that password protects files, allowing users to keep their information secure.

To embrace a groundbreaking smart mobile lifestyle, Adam Elements thinks from the angle of everyday utility combined with aesthetics to produce products and apps that provide a more diversified, smart life.
