October 11, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Louisville Cabinets and Countertops in Louisville, Kentucky is proud to announce that they are now offering full kitchen remodeling. The company recently stated that they are now providing kitchen remodeling services throughout the Louisville area and states that they have increased their inventory in an effort to ensure that homeowners get the specific room design that they want.

Tim Montgomery, a spokesperson for the cabinet and remodeling service says, "We specialize in counters and cabinets and are pleased to be able to now offer our customers full kitchen remodeling."

The company says that their dedicated team will always ensure that the kitchen remodeling will meet all of the customer's needs, from functionality to design. The company says that the kitchen is often the focal point of a home. It is where families gather for meals, conversations, homework and more. As such, the kitchen should be warm and inviting and provide enough space for the family. Louisville Cabinets and Countertops say that they are pleased to now be able to give their customers the kitchens that they have always dreamed of.

"You want a warm and inviting space," says Montgomery. "We can build that for you. And, we work with so many wonderful name brands that ensure that your kitchen is remodeled using only the highest possible quality of materials and appliances."

Montgomery says that homeowners in and around Louisville that would like more information on their services or the specific brands that they carry can take a look at their Yelp page at <https://www.yelp.com/biz/louisville-cabinets-and-countertops-louisville?osq=cabinets>. The company says that they have recently increased their inventory, adding new quality brands and new products that customers can choose from to help create the kitchen of their dreams. The team states that they work with customers on an individual basis. Montgomery says that just as no two people are alike, no two kitchens should be alike. He says that the company understands that everyone wants their own unique space. He says that cabinets and countertops come in more than 50 styles, all of which can be customized based on the customer's specific style and budget.

The company works with top brands and suppliers to provide the highest quality of remodels. Montgomery says that their team is composed of experienced designers and installers, to ensure that customers are completely satisfied with the job that they provide. Their new full kitchen remodeling services allow them to customize kitchens for their customers even further. The team states that they strive to make each and every kitchen that they redo suitable for the needs of each individual homeowner.

The company uses materials from brands like Koch & Co., Marsh, Colorquartz, Legacy and a number of other trusted brands in the industry. Louisville Cabinets and Countertops have been in business in Kentucky for more than 25 years. The company comes highly recommended by their past customers and say that they will work with customers to ensure that their remodel will meet their style and their budgeting needs. They provide financing options to customers and have a website where those interested can take a look at their complete online portfolio. The company urges those who are considering a kitchen remodel to contact them for a project estimate. They state that they can assist homeowners in realizing the kitchen of their dreams, no matter what their specific design or dream may be.

Montgomery says that a new kitchen adds not only an aesthetic benefit but can help to increase the value of the home, as well. Those who may be considering relocating in the next few years can significantly increase the selling price of their homes by remodeling the kitchen and the return on investment is normally a good trade off. Montgomery says that while kitchens are essential for a home, that does not mean that they cannot be welcoming and even fun. He urges homeowners in the Louisville area to give the company a call when they decide that they want to redo the kitchen. He states that they offer a number of cost effective benefits, in addition to their no cost financing quotes and fully customizable kitchen designs. Those who are interested can learn more about the company on their official website or contact them directly to schedule a consultation.

Louisville Cabinets and Countertops states that they look forward to helping their customers with their new range of inventory and their full kitchen remodeling.
