

VENTURE 4TH ® Compare A Self Inflating Sleeping Mat Vs Inflatable Ultralight Sleeping Pad

October 23, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

VENTURE 4TH ®, an online store offering outdoor recreation products, is offering two kinds of products for people who plan to sleep outdoors, such as when camping. One is a self inflating sleeping mat that does not require a pump or lung power. It also has the advantage of requiring very little time to setup as the mattress is self inflating. The pneumatic valve quickly inflates the sleeping mat. The other product is an ultralight sleeping mat, which is convenient when traveling, camping or hiking. The major advantage of this is that it is very light so it is ideal for those who love to go on hikes or walks. Because it does not need a pneumatic valve, it is very light in weight. Still it is easy to inflate because it merely requires 10 to 12 breaths to inflate.

Patricia Wright from VENTURE 4TH ® says, "These sleeping mats, whether the self inflating type or the ultralight type, are available at our Amazon store with a 25 percent discount. Just use the discount code "GLAMPINGV4TH" at check out."

VENTURE 4TH ® explains that the self inflating sleeping pad offers a quiet, warm and supportive mattress for a comfortable sleep while camping outdoors. The pad measures 72 inches by 22 inches, which provides enough space for sleeping. It is 1.5 inches thick and has a puncture proof 75D polyester outer shell to ensure uninterrupted sleep and it can be placed even on tree roots and rocks. The pad has a tapered design so as to reduce weight and volume, which makes it convenient for packing. It can be packed down to only 7 inches by 11 inches and because a carrying bag is provided, it is convenient to transport.

So far, the self inflating sleeping pad has almost 90 reviews and has an overall rating of 4.7 out of 5 stars. For instance, one Amazon customer known as Everstar gave the product 5 stars and said, "This pad is awesome! We used to have to pack 2 or 3 very large super thick foam pads with us that literally took up almost an entire turtle shell on the top of the car. This pad rolls up so small that space is no longer an issue. Setting it up is so simple - all I have to do is unscrew the valve and wait a minute or two to self inflate, then screw the valve so it doesn't lose air. I thought packing it up would be a pain, but nope - unscrew the valve, lay on it for a second, fold it once length wise and roll it up. Rolls up nice and small every time I've done it. I was surprised how comfortable this pad was and how warm it kept me! The only thing I miss about the old pads is having a soft floor across the entire tent and not just the bed... but because of the greater comfort, I can live without a soft floor when I step in."

Meanwhile, VENTURE 4TH ® explains that the ultralight sleeping pad is truly ultralight because it does have a pneumatic valve. Thus, while the user has to blow some air into it, only 10 to 12 breaths are needed to inflate it. And because of its air cells design, it can withstand heavy use. It is easy to bring anywhere of its compact and lightweight design. Thus, it can be brought along for long car rides, pool parties, open air festivals, camping, scouting and even in the home or office.

The ultralight sleeping pad has around 80 reviews and an overall rating of 4.2 out of 5 stars. For example, Patrick V.N. gave the product five starts and said, "I was skeptical when I opened the package because this sleeping pad was very lightweight, and even when I inflated it was very thin. However, straight from the beginning, you can see it was made from quality materials. I was amazed how comfortable it was, especially since it is ultra-light-weight and thin. It compares to some of the thick sleeping pads. I love how technology is making things more efficient nowadays - and this is a pure example! I use it for my travels or whenever I need an extra space to sleep. It is very portable and convenient. And did I mention I inflated it in 12 breaths? Amazing! Feel free to ask me any questions you might have."
