October 24, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Nuisance Wildlife Marshals in Orlando, Florida has announced that they have increased their fleet size to accommodate the wildlife control needs of Florida residents. A representative for the company recently stated that the main needs homeowners in Florida have is bat removal, rat extermination, snake removal, and all other nuisance animals.

Travis Schlegel with Nuisance Wildlife Marshals says, "We offer Orlando FL wildlife control for all of those nuisances. We are pleased to announced that we can now expand our service reach because we have added new equipment, new vehicles and new staff to accommodate the growing number of nuisance animal reports in the Florida region."

Schlegel says that the company provides wildlife removal that includes armadillos, opossum, raccoons and bats and can trap and remove coyotes, hogs and other wild animals. He says that whether a home or business has a snake problem, has moles in the yard or any other form of wildlife issue, they can provide the necessary removal services. The company states that given the number of wildlife reports that have come in over the past few months, particularly with temperatures turning cooler, they felt that the time was right to increase their fleet and therefore increase their service range.

"It's fall," says Schlegel. "That means that all of those wild animals around your home or business are going to be looking for safe places to breed. Unfortunately, that often means that they will be crawling under homes and into attics in order to seek shelter, which can present quite a problem."

Schlegel says that homeowners may begin to notice signs of wild animal infestations during the colder months, even in Florida where temperatures do not typically get below freezing during the winter months. He says that those who are interested in seeing their range of service areas can visit them at their Google Maps page at <https://goo.gl/maps/naYqyznbkDJ2>.

The company states that the larger fleet will enable them to provide more pest control for more customers. They state that after wildlife has been removed or controlled, they ensure that the problem does not come back again by providing services that effectively deter pests from entering a home or business. Schlegel says that the company will also provide clean up services after the wildlife has been eradicated. Animals in homes or other buildings can damage insulation and soffit and may carry diseases and can cause other health issues. Nuisance Wildlife Marshals state that they will clean up these messes and make homes or businesses safe once again for their inhabitants. They will ensure that the area has been decontaminated prior to leaving.

Schlegel says that this is an important step in the process of ridding a structure of unwanted pests. He says that the company takes as much time as is needed to ensure that there are no hazards left behind from the animals and that the animals cannot reenter the structure in the future. Those who are interested can read more about their range of services and interact with other customers of the company on the official Nuisance Wildlife Marshals Facebook page.

Nuisance Wildlife Marshals has a team of experienced, educated and trained experts who specialize in the removal of wildlife from homes and businesses, including warehouses, department stores, restaurants and more. The company states that they also offer a free inspection to determine if wildlife is a problem in a home or business and can provide a quote for the removal of that wildlife if an infestation is evident.
