

Chicago Autohaus Rated Fastest Among All Chicago Body Shops

October 24, 2018

Logan Square, Illinois - October 24, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chicago Autohaus has been rated as having the fastest turnaround time among all Chicago body shops from vehicle intake to completion. The company recently stated that they are thrilled to have received this honor and state that they will continue to provide their customers with fast yet friendly and effective auto services.

Saif Yasin, a representative for the body shop, says, "We are thrilled to be rated the fastest Chicago body shop. Of course, our main goal is not to be the fastest, but to be the best. We just happen to want to give our customers the fastest possible turnaround time at the same time that we provide them with high-quality auto body services."

Yasin says that customers can contact the company to receive a comprehensive assessment for collision and automobile repair services. Their team members put their customers needs first. The company states that the first stage of repairing an automobile is assessing the damage that has been done. He says that the auto body company can bring in a customer's car, assess the extent of the damage that was done, and then recommend the services that are needed. Yasin states that they will recommend replacing body parts or repairing the existing ones depending on the damages that have been incurred and what will best suit each customer.

"No two customers are alike," says Yasin. "No two cars are alike either and we know that you want what is best for your car, your budget, and your individual needs. We do our best to accommodate all of those needs."

He says that while the company repairs the customer's car, they will ensure that their team will attempt to retain as much of the original equipment and parts as possible, while still repairing all obvious damages. The company works on a number of luxury brand cars and trucks, as well as domestics and other models. Yasin says that they can effectively remove obvious exterior damages such as dings, scratches, and dents.

He says that they offer services for serious damages and specific repairs, as well. Yasin says that the company provides customers with different repair bundle packages to address a number of repair needs. They provide auto restoration services for higher-end vehicles and classic cars and trucks as well as hot rods, muscle cars, and others. Yasin states that those who have exotic cars that need hard to find parts or accessories can reach out to them, as well. Those interested can find more at <https://goo.gl/maps/SQN4JskDnEJ2>.

Yasin points out that Chicago Autohaus is the premier collision repair center in Chicago, offering customization and various other auto repairs. He states that the entire staff at Chicago Autohaus are pleased that they have been named as the fastest and most reliable service company in the city by their customers. The company is located in a convenient place to serve the Gold Coast and North Side areas as well as those outside Chicago in the suburbs and outlying areas. The full-service auto body shop provides auto services for Lexus, Mercedes, Jaguar, Audi and various imported and domestic cars. Yasin says that customers who have body damage, whether that damage includes completely crashed in parts or a simple ding, they can handle those damages and do it quickly to get the customer and his or her vehicle back on the road.

Chicago Autohaus was founded in 2014. The owner and a friend were working in Chicago out of Flash Cab and decided that it was time to redefine the collision repair experience. Yasin says that today, the company is just as dedicated to providing customers with the safest, highest quality and most original repairs possible while getting those repairs done as quickly as possible. After the repair service was started, the owner and his friend began hiring more professional team members that could help them to meet their ultimate goals of complete customer satisfaction. Chicago Autohaus today boasts hassle-free, premium service with the expertise needed for serious and often hard to handle repairs and with unparalleled customer service.

Those who are interested in learning more can visit the company on their official website or any of their social media pages to see reviews from other customers. Those in the Chicago area can contact the company to
