EmergencyGoBags.com has announced that they are now offering a new line of products related to self-defense. The company is known for their various survival based bags for natural disasters and other emergency situations, but with the rise in crime and rioting across many states, they decided the population could benefit from these 5 new kits. The newest additions to the line include an Apartment Invasion Kit, Personal Protection Kit, Car and Travel Kit for protection from carjackers, Home Invasion Kit, and a Riot Protection Kit.

<http://www.emergencygobags.com/> explains: "With so much violence and chaos in the world today, you need to be prepared for anything! Having the right supplies available is imperative to protecting you and your family."

The Self Defense kits ship for free, and each kit is designed to help in a specific situation. While some of the supplies inside are similar between each bag, they also contain unique items, which are meant to be useful in applications relating to their titles. For example, the Home Protection Kit contains a three in one pepper spray, tear gas, and marking dye, as well as a multi-tool knife, high pitched whistle, and many other items. The bag that holds the products is designed using a water resistant nylon material, which can be taken in case of an evacuation, and used on the go. It can be viewed at <http://bit.ly/1RrpdeK>

Many of the kits available through EmergencyGoBags.com also include a tactical flashlight and first aid kit, making them useful for camping and travel. The company has said the following regarding emergency kits and their relevance in everyday life: "Our Survival Kits, Emergency Kits and Emergency Go Bags are specifically packed with the emergency supplies you'll need to take care of yourself and your family if and when a disaster strikes. Because you never know where you'll be when an emergency happens, experts recommend everyone should have at least one Survival Kit or Emergency Kit in your home, one in your car and one at work."

Another location where potential customers can view the merchandise is at <http://www.emergencygobags.com/survival%20kits%20go%20bags> or <http://bit.ly/1Blbq1H>. Each kit contains an explanation of how many people it offers supplies for and how each item can be used. The 4 Person Guardian Deluxe Survival Kit Bucket, for example, comes stocked inside of a bucket with a flip top toilet seat should you find your home's water cut off from a natural disaster such as flooding, or you've had to bug out. Other items like pouches of water, calorie food bars and water purification tablets, emergency blankets, tents and many other necessities can also be found in the kit.

The EmergencyGoBags.com team are very excited to be offering five new kits to the public, as they feel that the products inside could be essential in a worst case scenario. They invite customers to contact them online and check out their site for more details. One thing that distinguishes EmergencyGoBags.com from other emergency preparedness companies is that they donate a portion of all sales to the Canine Support Teams, Pawz For Wounded Veterans program to help Disabled Veterans receive a specially trained service dog.
