VENICE CALIFORNIA ? Venice-based Weavy.com today announced that it has been named a semi-finality in the 2018 Edition of Startup of the Year in Boston, Massachusetts October 15-17. Past participants include GrubHub, Groupon, LivingSocial, AddThis, Desk, and Uber.

Founded in 2006, Startup of the Year screens innovative startups across the globe for the most promising ideas and helps them develop their branding and go-to-market strategies.

Said Rickard Hansson, Weavey.com CEO and Founder, "We're obviously delighted to be named a Startup of the Year semi-finalist. There literally are thousands of startups around the world and it's wonderful to have our ingenuity and hard work recognized this way. Startup of the Year is a great organization and we encourage every startup to apply for consideration in the 2019 competition."

"The enterprise collaboration space is full of great technologies. Our selection stems from our innovative approach of providing independent software developers (ISV) with an embeddable collaboration platform that they can add to their software application with a single line of code. I'm looking forward to meeting the Startup of the Year team and the other semi-finalists in person in Boston," said Hansson.
