October 16, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Victoria, BC house painters, Moloney Painting Ltd. have announced that they will be adding complete house painting to their list of painting services.

The move comes after BJA Painting recently expanded to cover all of Victoria and it's turned the once small Victoria, BC painting company into a fully-fledged painting company.

Paul Moloney from Moloney Painting spoke about the expansion. "It was the right time to do it. I had been painting houses off and on for 20 years but never made it an official selling point as I was afraid I didn't have the manpower to cover it. But since we took over Victoria, we have the teams and the know-how to do it. Bring it on."

Painting a house is no easy feat, especially in Victoria with it's ever-changing weather patterns and old houses that go back over 100 years in some suburbs.

In most cases, the decades of old paint have to be stripped back to bare wood as painting over old paint will not bring a result worthy of Moloney Painting's seal of approval.

Moloney says, "To get a coat of paint that lasts, you need to do it properly. Paint is an amazing thing but it's only as good as the prep work you put into it. If you slap some Resene paint over old budget paint, the foundation of that new paint is only as good as the previous layer. So in a year's time, that budget paint will begin to crack and the new Resene paint will crack with it. We can't have that."

So with the Victoria-wide house painting service also comes a surface preparation service that will cover any paintable surface and render it ready for paint.

This covers but is not limited to: paint stripping via heat gun and sandpaper to concrete sealing, plastering and gib stopping.

An increase in service offers is not easy and the manpower required for all this painting work is taken care of by Moloney Painting Ltd.

According to their website, "Moloney Painting Ltd. can take on any job, big or small and perfection is guaranteed from the first quote to the final coat."

The confidence in their work and the stiff standard that the company sets for itself is truly a testament to over 20 years of providing painting services in Auckland and the website backs up all claims with positive reviews and testimonials from past customers of Moloney Painting Ltd..

Felicia Holes, a past customer had this to say, "I needed the house painted in Victoria, BC painted a few months back and hired Moloney Painting Ltd. to do the job. Really professional painting company, Paul and his team are definitely experts in painting. I recommend them to anyone who needs any house painting."

The list of reviews only keeps going but just a quick glance through the feedback profile shows that the Victoria, BC painting company knows everything that there is to know about painting a house.

Moloney says, "House painting is the holy grail of residential painting. It has so many nuances and details, demands so much from the painter that you really can't go about it with anything short of utter care and professionalism. From the scaffolding hire to the preparation and paint selection that can withstand Victoria weather, if you sleep through any detail, it'll come back to haunt you in a big way."

Getting a house painted in Victoria also requires a watchful eye on the weather as rain can strike at any time, thus ruining hours of carefully applied paint.

?I subscribe to about 5 different weather channels and have weather alerts on the phone. Moloney says, ?if there?s even a chance of rain I make sure to account for it in the daily plan and make sure we can make up for lost time. It?s things like that which helps us stay ahead of the game and make sure we don?t fall behind schedule.?

Ensuring that timetables are maintained and clients kept happy is a key component to running a successful house painting business and one that catches up to lesser painting companies, as one or two jobs that run late can affect a whole season and create a backlog.
