

Cars Dealerships Near Me Celebrates J.D. Byrider Shattering Their Previous Record for Helping Customers in Saginaw

Sara Jacobs with J.D. Byrider is excited to announce that they've helped more people get cars in September and October of 2018 than they had in September and October of 2017. For customers who struggle to get a vehicle due to poor credit, this is fantastic news. Jacobs considers it a victory every time they can help someone get financing for a car.

Regarding this announcement, this is what Sara had to say, "Many people with poor or bad credit struggle in a number of ways. Typically, they had a bad few months and got behind on bills and their credit has suffered for it. In order to get out of that situation, they need to hold down a reliable job and pay off debts or collectors. A key to that is having a reliable vehicle to get to and from work, or in many cases for people in this situation, to get around between multiple jobs. That is where we come in, helping these people secure reliable transportation."

A "Buy Here, Pay Here" option for getting a vehicle allows a prospective car buyer a way to get into a vehicle and pay it off quickly. This option is also a great opportunity to start rebuilding credit. J.D. Byrider in Saginaw also gives multiple payment options and low down payments.

Gerald T. of Saginaw that this to say about his experience, "I was really down on my luck. I didn't have the best credit and the last car I bought only lasted me 4 months. 4 months and that thing had barely run to begin with. I had bought it from another dealership, it was clearly a lemon after a month in, but they still wouldn't do anything. I was out several thousand dollars and didn't have much to put down. Rick was able to help me find a car I could afford and 6 months later it is still strong as it was the day I drove it off the lot. They also offer maintenance packages on it after the fact, which makes me feel confident with my purchase. Thank you Rick!?"

J.D. Byrider has a thorough process for inspecting and reconditioning cars. They ensure that the vehicles will meet the owner's needs, both from a cost standpoint and a reliability standpoint. Their reconditioning process includes more than a simple cleaning and detailing. Their technicians also recondition the vehicle for optimal safety standards.

Some Buy-Here-Pay-Here dealerships are simply just that - a dealership, Jacobs says. They will set a customer up with a running vehicle and after that the transaction is complete. With J.D. Byrider, a car buyer becomes a customer for life. They offer service options, discounts on oil changes, and limited warranty packages. The relationship doesn't end once the car is driven off the lot.

Sara Beckworth bought a car at J.D. Byrider last spring and wanted to share this review, "My credit was terrible. I had gotten a divorce a couple of years ago and got the raw end of the deal. I ended up with tens of thousands of dollars of credit card statements and medical bills that I couldn't afford on my own. I had to let everything default and go to collections. As someone who was raised to pay bills early, this was a very troubling time for me. Then my car broke down out of nowhere. I knew I wouldn't get approved for a traditional loan, so a friend recommended for me to go to J.D. Byrider. I thought a national chain would never approve me. But within 2 days I was mobile again. Can't thank J.D. enough."

Each representative at J.D. Byrider understands that some people that visit them aren't always in the best place of their life. They believe that every person deserves a second chance, especially when they are actively trying to make their lives and their family's lives better.

Since durability and reliability is key when choosing a car, J.D. Byrider opts to offer a diverse inventory of cars that are less than a decade old. This ensures that the car will last longer, but also, the owner will feel a sense of pride when driving it around. Sara Jacobs notes that they do stock some older vehicles, but they will always try to get drivers into something that feels fresh and runs perfectly. They know it is simply bad business to put someone into a vehicle that has 3 different shades of the original color or breaks down within months of purchasing.
