GJ Boon is a UK-based online retailer of gifts and novelty items. Knowing that there are many children and adults who just love dragons, GJ Boon launched a collection of gifts with dragons as the guiding theme.

For those who find it difficult to understand the passion some children and adults have for dragons, here are some interesting 'facts' from the wonder World of dragons.

Many children and adults who love anything dragon will not be able to formulate a coherent explanation about why they like dragons so much. They would not have the slightest idea! Many from childhood on feel possessed by dragons. Some children associate dragons with flying and as a flight through the sky on the back of dragon is an appealing image, it stays embedded in their mind as something wonderful and that feeling gets portrayed onto dragons. Whereas other children just find the fire spewing dragons a fanciful idea and it just sticks with them into adulthood.

Dragon lovers have dragons spread all over their house - on the shelf, on the floor, next to the bed. Even next to their front door there could be two!

Just like humans look different and every human has a different character, dragons too can't be seen to be uniform. Dragons have so many different appearances. For many dragon lovers, the gifts in the shape of dragons represent a voyage of discovery, because they are never sure how many different varieties of dragons there are. There are water dragons, fire dragons, air dragons, earth dragons. And then, of course, there are countless combinations of them. Then there are also some with several heads, several tails, some which can fly and others that can't fly.

All these dragons live in all the different countries of the World. Some live in Europe and others live in China. Everywhere in the world people know dragon stories. But these stories always depend on what kind of dragons there are. Water dragons live deep in the ocean, lava dragons live in volcanoes, and air dragons always hide behind the clouds.

There are countless of them swimming around at the Chinese Dragon Boat Festival. They swim, fly, run, and they are carried through the streets. That is absolutely true. In Hong Kong, a big Chinese island city, there is even a high-rise in which a huge hole was built so that the dragons could fly through them from the mountains to the sea.

Another peculiar type of dragon is called the 'house dragon'. These are animals that actually risk living together with humans. However, they are usually quite handy in size. Some are no bigger than egg cups. Then there are also some house dragons that are quite handsome. These are the ones that have to be hidden behind the sofa when unexpected guests come to visit. The house dragons need to be well looked after. Since they feed on moonlight, they should always be allowed to get enough of it as food.

The above just gives a glimpse into the wonderful World of dragons. Dragon gifts can be found under the following link on the GJ Boon website: <https://www.gjboon.com/it-s-different/gothic-fantasy/dragon-gifts.html>

The company is also planning to publish product videos on their YouTube GJ Boon Gifts & Novelty Items channel. For people wondering what to give as a gift to a friend or a loved one, GJ Boon offers an impressive range of gifts with the gift collection poised to grow as the company moves into a larger warehouse.
