

Hydrofeet Insoles Launches YouTube Channel

June 24, 2015

June 24, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Hydrofeet® massaging insoles now has a YouTube channel named Hydrofeet® Insoles to which customers can subscribe to at https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCyLR4tzPgms\_XQKWibf9aQQ. Initially, a Doodle video about Hydrofeet® shoe insoles for men and women and the advantages of wearing them was posted to create awareness among individuals who are looking for that perfect pair of shoe inserts. The video has already been viewed over 600 times. <https://youtu.be/iT3JxULBA3Y>

Hydrofeet® v2 video talks about the three main reasons why rubber, gel or foam inserts do not work for some people. First, the said insoles are not durable enough to withstand the weight the users are putting onto their feet. On the average, a male puts 250 pounds on each foot while he walks. A female, on the contrary, puts 150 pounds on each foot. The video illustrates how these insoles will wear out after some time.

Secondly, traditional insoles do not adjust to the unique foot structure of every individual. Even tailor-fit insoles cannot provide exceptional comfort for everyone's feet. Hydrofeet® shoe insoles were found to have 50 times the viscosity and strength of traditional insoles.

The last reason provided explains the inability of rubber, gel or foam insoles to improve blood circulation that helps in the healing process of slightly injured patients. On the contrary, Hydrofeet® shoe insoles for women and men advance the healing process of even minor injuries by massaging the feet as the patient walks; thus, leading to improved blood circulation. This phenomenon, in turn, makes the lower extremities ? ankles, knees, and hips ? feel better as well.

More informative and educational videos are expected to be posted on the YouTube channel Hydrofeet Insoles. These include how to take care of the feet, and on how to address the common foot problems such as plantar fasciitis, bunions, and soreness.
