Reminex, a business based in Irwindale, CA, has announced that they have launched the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo. The company explained that this shampoo is designed to reduce the aging of hair and slow down the graying process while providing the hair with a healthy shine.

Allen Farrar, spokesperson for Reminex, says, "The hair you dream is right around the corner. We know that passing time is inevitable, but gray hairs can be stopped and reversed to their original color with the help of the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo. Its proprietary formula is designed to slow down the process of greying hairs, making you instantly look younger. Plus, the bio nutrients will enhance your hair's natural beauty by promoting healthy regrowth."

Allen explains that it is the pigment cells in the hair follicles that produce melanin that in turn provides the color of the hair. As people age, these pigment cells in the follicles begin to die resulting in the lack of melanin, thus hairs turn gray, silver, and then eventually they become white. Hair follicles that have stopped producing melanin will never be able to produce colored hair strands again. It should be noted that certain health conditions, such as vitiligo, vitamin B12 deficiency, thyroid disease and certain inherited but rare tumor conditions, can cause hair to turn gray. Stress may have an indirect effect by causing hair to be shed three times faster, and when the hair grows back, it may no longer be the original color but gray instead. Cigarette smoking has also been found to cause hair to become gray.

Allen also points out that race has a role in the graying of hair. On average, Asians start to have gray hair in their late 30s while white people begin to have gray hair in their middle 30s. Meanwhile, African-Americans start to have gray hair only during their mid-40s. Some people may experience gray hair 10 years earlier than the average. For those who want to pluck out their gray hair, it is not really advisable, not because three will grow in its place, but because pulling hair out can cause damage to the hair follicles so that the hair may thin over time.

Allen notes that because gray hair is thinner than regular hair, it can easily get dehydrated. That is why gray hair can feel dry, coarse and fragile. It is here that nutrients for the hair are needed to get them hydrated.

Thus, shampoo and conditioner that rehydrate the hair can help with making gray hair bouncy and healthy again.

According to Allen, the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo has all-natural ingredients and oils to provide a treatment with the goal of protecting the hair while reversing its age and white hair. It is capable of cleaning the hair while hydrating it so as to provide it with full body and bounce. The natural ingredients of the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo include rice bran oil, argan oil, algae extract, and He Shouw Wu extract. With these ingredients, Allen says that this shampoo may restore hair to its natural color, prevent hair loss and stimulate hair growth.

Allen Farrar says, "We conduct biochemical testing, identity testing and micro testing for each batch to ensure the concentration and active ingredients are all present within specifications, and more importantly to make sure it follows USP standards and FDA guidelines." Thus, the company is able to guarantee the quality of the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo. Furthermore, this shampoo has been ascertained to be free from harsh chemicals such as parabens, ensuring that it is suitable for all types of hair, and for both men and women.

Aside from the Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo, also available is a Reminex natural colour restore hair conditioner. Just like with the anti gray hair shampoo, the hair conditioner has been provided with all-natural ingredients that when combined may be able to slow down the aging of hair and the graying process.

Allen Farrar says, "The Reminex Anti Gray Hair Shampoo and Conditioner are available in 13.5 oz bottles that were produced using Good Manufacturing Practice or GMP. And we're so sure of the results that we provide a Satisfaction Guarantee."

This grey reducing shampoo also contains omega 3 and essential acids, which may help people with premature graying hair. This treatment has been found to be capable of stimulating hair growth and preventing the thinning of hair so that the mane looks healthier, thicker and younger.
