Hydreight, a business based in Las Vegas, NV, has announced that they are now offering mobile hydration treatment in Cleveland, Ohio. This is provided through intravenous (IV) therapy. The company notes that Cleveland is a city where there is a lot of energy and residents are always busy with something, which could result in dehydration.

Shane Madden from Hydreight says, "Hydreight is a safe and effective mobile IV hydration solution. This simply means that you can book an IV hydration therapy session via the Hydreight mobile app. The app shows you nearby specialists who can go to your home or office for an IV therapy session. You can pay in cash or via any major credit card. Soon, you will also be able to settle your balance via Apple Pay or Android Pay for more convenience."

Shane states that Hydreight now offers effective and safe IV drip treatments in the city of Cleveland and that people can choose one of four treatments. These are The Liquilift, Fountain of Youth, The Executive, and Rise and Shine all powered by Liquivida. The Liquilift, powered by Liquivida, is an all-in-one treatment for hydrating, detoxifying and rejuvenating a person in one complete infusion. Fountain of Youth is for stimulating metabolism, boosting energy, and supporting weight loss. The Executive is for those who are preparing for or recuperating from an activity that requires strenuous physical exertion, like a marathon. Rise and Shine is for replenishing the body's fluid and electrolytes and thus is most suitable for those who are recovering from a hangover or a jet lag.

Shane Madden says, "If it's recreation that you're after, you're sure to find it in Cleveland. Ohio's second largest city is known for its cultural offerings - from art districts and farmers markets to sporting events and nature trips. Whether you're visiting for the first time or returning home as a local, there is always something to keep you happily distracted in this charming city. If you're a tourist with a packed Cleveland holiday itinerary or if you're a local simply looking to boost your energy for the work week ahead, Hydreight Cleveland has got you covered."

Residents and visitors of Cleveland and surrounding areas are encouraged to download the Hydreight mobile app. Through this app, they would be able to book an IV therapy specialist, who will go to where they are located to administer an IV therapy session.

Shane Madden explains, "Our Cleveland IV therapy specialists will go to your home, office or hotel to administer the IV therapy of your choice. We accept payments in cash or via any major credit card."

This mobile hydration treatment, according to Shane, is ideal for people who want to use IV hydration therapy as part of an overall wellness or treatment program; people suffering from a migraine, fibromyalgia or chronic fatigue syndrome and want to use IV therapy as a supplementary treatment based on the advice of a licensed doctor; and people who want a fast and effective relief from a hangover, jet lag, flu symptoms, and more.

Shane Madden explains why people may want to consider IV hydration therapy, "IV therapy is the process of administering a solution directly into the vein. Doctors and medical professionals use IV infusion therapy to help manage the nutritional status of patients who are unable to properly swallow food or medicine and have it absorbed by the body. But even when oral intake of food and medicine is successful, IV support is also sometimes needed to ensure that much-needed nutrients are absorbed by the body, since some can get lost along the way during the digestive process."

The mobile IV vitamin therapy provided by Hydreight, according to Shane, can help in flushing out toxins, giving an energy boost, boosting the immune system, restoring fluid and electrolyte balance, promoting a general feeling of wellness, recharging the body after performing a very strenuous activity, or managing the symptoms of flu, dehydration, migraine, fibromyalgia and more.

Hydreight had also recently started to offer mobile IV hydration therapy in Las Vegas, NV, as announced in the press release found at <https://www.pressadvantage.com/story/22054-new-mobile-iv-hydration-therapy-introduced>. Like Cleveland, Las Vegas is a city with a lot of things to do, including nights where people may indulge in drinking and other activities. Thus, residents and visitors of Las Vegas may also need the benefits provided by IV hydration therapy.

Furthermore, the Hydreight hydration therapy may also be beneficial for corporate professionals after a particularly grueling work week. When combined with regular exercise, balanced diet, and sufficient sleep, IV hydration therapy can help people achieve their wellness goals by ensuring that they get the right amount of water, electrolytes, vitamins, and minerals.
