Local Pay Per Results in Phoenix, Arizona has announced that they are offering guaranteed page one Google rankings for local businesses. The SEO firm states that they have a list of services that can help companies to reach those coveted first pages of search results for their chosen keywords. Paul, a spokesperson for the company, says that those first few pages are where businesses need to be.

“Studies have shown that people generally only look at the first one to three pages of search results,” says Paul. “This means that if your business ranks on page four or even farther down, then you are likely not getting the attention that you need to get for your business. You need to be listed on the first, second or third page on Google and other search engines for relevant keywords or you are quite simply losing business.”

Paul says that there are a number of ways that businesses can reach these higher pages but he says that it takes a bit of expertise in SEO in order to know what strategies will work for each business. He says that reaching those top spots is not easy and that someone with no knowledge of how SEO works will likely not be able to accomplish it. He further states that his company is staffed with SEO experts and says that they offer guaranteed services.

“If you don’t rank, you don’t pay us,” Paul says. “It is really as simple as that. We want you to reach those rankings and we ensure that you get where you want to be. You pay us when you hit those coveted top spots. You will be surprised at your local SEO results and again, if you are not hitting the ranks that you want, you do not pay us until you do.”

The company says that their pay per performance services are designed to show clients that they know what they are doing. Paul says that they have years of experience in search engine optimization and that due to the constant changes surrounding SEO and how it should be done, those who want to have their websites noticed online need to entrust the services of a professional SEO agency. He says that those without any knowledge of SEO are not likely to be able to get a site to rank higher on the search engines where they need to be in order to be seen.

Paul says that even smaller local businesses and those that do not rely on online business need to establish and maintain an online presence. He says that with content marketing, social media marketing and other strategies, his team can help a business to rank higher on search engines for local traffic, meaning that anyone in the local area that is searching for the products or services offered by that company will find them first before anyone else in the area.

The company’s pay per results page one ranking services are customizable. Paul says that this helps them to cater their SEO services specifically to the company that needs them, ensuring that they capture the attention of the specific people that they are looking to market to.
