Reminex, the health brand, has recently launched their new anti gray hair supplement that is available for sale on Amazon.

It is normal for hair color to change, as people age. But white hair can appear at almost any time in life. Even teenagers and people in their 20s may notice strands of white hair. The human body has millions of hair follicles or small sacs lining the skin. The follicles generate hair and color or pigment cells that contain melanin. Over time, hair follicles lose pigment cells, resulting in white hair color. Reminex's new launch may not only be able to help reduce gray hair, but it can also double up as a hair thinning treatment.

A common cause of graying hair is the deficiency of vitamin B-6, B-12, biotin, vitamin D, or vitamin E. One 2015 report in the journal Development notes various deficiency studies on vitamin D-3, vitamin B-12, and copper and their connection to graying hair. It finds nutritional deficiencies affect pigmentation, suggesting color can return with vitamin supplementation.

According to Allen Farrar, the representative at Reminex, "These supplements are enriched with Vitamin B6, Catalase, Biotin, Saw Palmetto, Horsetail Extract, Sho-Wu beta carotene and other minerals that will bring back your hair's vitality. Our proprietary formula will replenish Catalase, which is in charge of hair's natural pigmentation."

He continues, "Reminex 60's amazing Anti Gray Hair Vitamin is manufactured in the USA in an FDA registered CGMP compliant facility. We conduct assay testing, identity testing and micro testing for each batch to ensure the concentration and active ingredients are all present within spec, and more importantly to make sure it follows USP standards and FDA guidelines."
