July 01, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Cujo Control, a pet training business in Fairfield, NJ, have released their popular dog training collar via the Amazon marketplace. To celebrate this release Cujo Control is offering a 57% discount while supplies last.

"Our dog training collar gained huge popularity as soon as it was released and we believe for good reason," says Jeremy Arteago from Cujo Control. "It is designed to teach even the biggest dog out there how to be an obedient and pleasant dog. To celebrate its popularity and to give more people the opportunity to properly train their dog, we have released it at a significant discount for a limited time only."

The collar comes with a remote control. It has eight different levels of shock and vibration correction, as well as a sound mode. The electric E collar is fully adjustable so that it can fit dogs of any size. It can be used on all dogs, regardless of their age. The anti-bark collar is fully waterproof and comes with a wireless charger. It has an 800 meter range and can train two dogs at the same time.

Since having been released, the collar has had many positive reviews. "My 1 year old dog's behavior changed immediately after the very first use of the collar," says Jeff J. "The change was so dramatic that I could hardly believe my eyes. He was in no way traumatized. He has the same cheery personality. Only difference is his total level of obedience. Now he can wander freely in the front yard and I don't have to worry about him running in front of cars. It gives him a level of freedom he hasn't had before."

The collar is designed to completely retrain a dog and does so much more than simply control excessive barking. If a dog is easily distracted, it takes just a single press of the button for their attention to be returned to their owner straight away. The methods are completely humane and dogs will in no way be harmed by the collar. Indeed, it can even help save a dog's life, particularly if they are prone to running out into the road.
