Friendly Pest Control, an Indianapolis business offering pest management services for Central Indiana, wants to warn homeowners that winter is coming, which means that rodents and other pests are likely to be entering homes as they seek warmth. The pest exterminator company points out that while there will be less mosquitoes and ants, house mice and rats tend to find shelter in nearby homes as the temperature outside becomes unbearable for them. Rodents can cause problems because they may carry diseases and can cause damage to property.

A spokesperson for Friendly Pest Control says, "With winter fast approaching, homeowners should be prepared for rodents and other pests entering their homes. They do not have to live with undesired pests. We will come out and inspect their home, then design the best plan that will eliminate them and protect the family from their return."

The spokesperson continues, "We can also give you peace of mind with our comprehensive protection plans for your home or business. Our ongoing services protect you from unwanted pests all year around, and come with our industry leading guarantee."

Other common pests to look out for during the winter season are cockroaches and brown recluse spiders. Cockroaches may find their way into a home through secondhand appliances, grocery bags, and boxes. Since they prefer areas where there is both moisture and food, cockroaches are commonly found in kitchens and bathrooms.

Meanwhile, recluse spiders like to stay in attics, closets, crawl spaces, and basements. They are also often found near boxes, window mouldings, seldom-used shoes and clothing, and ceiling corners. They pose a danger to people because they can bite and inject venom when they are disturbed.

Friendly Pest Control can help homeowners get rid of rats, house mice, cockroaches and spiders. Furthermore, they can also provide protection against the return of these pests so that homeowners can finally be ready for the winter.

Friendly Pest Control also provides pest control services for commercial establishments. These are designed to protect customers and employees from health problems that can be caused by pests. The company can provide a comprehensive assessment to determine all pest problems so that an effective pest management plan can be developed for the workplace.

The spokesperson points out that their services are available for central Indiana. For instance, they provide pest control Carmel residents are looking for. Carmel is a fast growing suburban city located on the North Side of Indianapolis. Indeed, the temperatures at Carmel have reached almost freezing levels so that rats, mice, cockroaches, and spiders are likely to be seeking a way to get inside homes.

The spokesperson explains that the pest control experts at Friendly Pest Control have undergone extensive training in order to ensure that they can offer the appropriate solutions, using the most up to date technology and techniques for pest control and extermination. They also make sure that they will respond as fast as possible in order to minimize the damage caused by the pests. Also, their services are offered with a satisfaction guarantee, which assures customers that Friendly Pest Control will continue its pest control efforts until all of the pests have been totally removed.

Another type of pest that Friendly Pest Control can help control in Indianapolis and surrounding areas are ants. In these areas, often found are carpenter ants, pharaoh ants, pavement ants, and citronella ants. While ants rarely pose a threat to people, they can carry diseases and they can contaminate the food found in the home or commercial establishment. Also, carpenter ants can cause serious damage to houses because they are able to bore into damp wood. Although carpenter ants don't eat wood, their boring into the wood can severely reduce the strength of the wood and cause structural damage. Ants can also be a unique problem because they are able to get into small cracks in the home. Mark advises homeowners not to kill ants by swatting them because wounded ants emit pheromones, which call for other ants to come to that particular spot.

Another kind of pest that Friendly Pest Control can help homeowners and building owners eliminate are bed bugs. Bed bugs can really be a nuisance and these pests can cause a lot of problems not just in homes because of their bites but also in the hospitality industry, such as bed and breakfast, hotels and motels. Their presence in such establishments can seriously damage the reputation of these businesses, possibly resulting into business failure. Thus, Friendly Pest Control teams realize the value of providing, fast, effective and total elimination of bed bugs.
