D & M Service Company INC Announces Air Conditioning Replacement Services in Louisville, KY

November 29, 2018

Louisville, Kentucky - November 29, 2018 -
D & M Service Company Inc is happy to announce that they are offering AC replacement services in Louisville and surrounding areas. In this region, D & M understands that a functional central air conditioning system is crucial. But with the cooler temperatures, it is more likely that a furnace needs to function properly, which is another HVAC service offered by D & M Service Company.

When approached about this announcement, the founder of D & M had this comment to share, ?Your heating and cooling need to be running optimally in order to save you money. With the 30 degree temperatures we?ve been having lately, the last thing you want is for your furnace to shut down. While this announcement is to shed light on our AC replacement services, it is equally as important to have your furnace serviced and maintained on a regular schedule. Please don?t hesitate to call us, day or night.?

D & M Service Company has been serving the local community of Louisville, KY for over 30 years. They have primarily offered furnace servicing and AC repair, but as of this announcement, they have extended their services to include AC replacement. They urge residents to have their AC system checked during the winter months so that it is running and optimal by spring - when things start to heat up. Readers can learn

Greg S. was happy to share his experience with D & M Service Company on Google, ?My family and I have been using D & M for our HVAC needs for years now. My parents have utilized their services for literally decades and both my home heating and A/C units were installed by them around 4 years ago. We've used them at our church's parsonage and they were my first recommendation to my adult children when they needed HVAC services. D & M has competent professionals who perform excellent work at a competitive price. They are also trustworthy - one of the few companies I will recommend to others. These guys are the real deal.?

D & M Service Company Inc offers many many services and benefits for their customers and clients. In addition to their AC and furnace solutions, they also offer air duct cleaning - an absolute necessity for the health and safety of families. Airborne viruses and other particulates get trapped in the air ducts and over time the build-up makes the job of keeping things out even harder. Homeowners will go through more and more air filters when the chief problem is that the air ducts need to be cleaned. D & M provides this service to save homeowners money overall and to keep their families safe.

Bill, a La Grange, KY resident, shared this glowing review on Yelp, ?We had our heater fail on 2/26/14. D&M was called they called back quickly and came out that day to fix our issue. They were with us late into the afternoon and had to get a part the next day. They saved us a bunch of money and fixed only what needed to be fixed. these guys were honest and straight with us. Highly recommended. Tell them Bill and Tunde sent you.?

This HVAC company, D & M, prioritizes three components for their customers and clients. First, they prioritize friendly customer service - from the very first call to the very last visit. Second, they prioritize knowledgeably team members. They want every person their clients and customers speak with to understand the ins and outs of HVAC so that there are no misunderstandings along the way. Finally, they prioritize quality service by only hiring expert professionals with vast experiences in the HVAC industry. They understand that each of these 3 components are crucial in providing a premium experience to their clients.
