

Maple Grove Roofing Contractors Launch New Google Website

November 27, 2018

November 27, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Versatile Roofing Pros, Maple Grove, MN, has announced that they have recently launched their new Google website. The new Google My Business website provides information on the kinds of services that they provide and reports on recently completed jobs.

Mark Golden, a spokesperson for the company, says, "We are a local roofing contractor in Maple Grove MN that provides roof installation and replacement. Call us today for a free consultation. We are always open from Monday to Sunday."

Versatile Roofing Pros - Maple Grove provides roofing services for both residential and commercial buildings in Maple Grove and surrounding areas. For those roofs that have not been inspected for a number of years after they were installed or repaired, Mark points out that it would be a good idea to have them inspected. Homeowners and building owners should realize that delaying the inspection and possible maintenance works on the roof could result into bigger expenses in the future.

Mark Golden explains that if a roof happens to have developed a leak no matter how small, this could grow over time and cause serious damage, not just to the roof, but to the inside of the home too. With the presence of a leak, rainwater can get inside the home and possibly destroy the drywall and wooden parts of the property. It may even cause mold to grow, which could be dangerous to the health of people living in the home.

And with regards to a leak, when it is just starting, it may be hard to detect this. That is why roofing professionals also offer leak detection services, which is part of the overall roof inspection services. Mark wants to emphasize that these services should not be left to people who lack the knowledge and experience. Homeowners and building owners will need to call on roofing professionals such as those available at Versatile Roofing Pros.

Mark also warns against homeowners doing the roof inspection themselves. This is because they will need to climb up the roof, which is dangerous without the proper training and the appropriate gear and equipment. Furthermore, they will need to walk on the roof and there could be areas of the roof that have become weak and these could give way while they're standing on them. Also, those who don't have the experience and knowledge will find it difficult to detect problems that are still emerging, such as small leaks.

Mark points out that roofing professionals are knowledgeable on what signs to look for and will know when a roof has to be replaced or repaired. For instance, if the roof is covered with algae, moss or fungi, it may be time to call in a roofing professional. Cracked, buckled or missing shingles may also be indications that the roof already needs to be replaced.

Mark explains that having a leak-free roof is all the more important for commercial establishments. When there's a leak, water could get in and possibly damage various goods that are stored in the building. Mark points out that having the roof regularly inspected would be more cost-effective than having a roof that has deteriorated to the point where it needs to be replaced. Roof replacement is a very expensive undertaking as it will involve the costs of tearing off the old roof, expenses for disposing of the old roof, interruption of business operations, and high labor expenses. It would be a better idea to have the roof inspected at regular intervals so that any emerging problem can be remedied or repaired and prevented from growing into a bigger problem.

Thus, roof repair would be the most cost-effective solution for a roof for both residential and commercial buildings. With roof repair, there would be no expenses for tearing off the existing roof, no interruption of business operations, no disposal expenses, and less labor costs. And another reason why it would be a good idea to contact roofing professionals is that they know what protection can be provided for the roof, such as paint or coatings.

Versatile Roofing Pros offers various roofing services for houses and commercial buildings. These include roof replacement, installation of new roofs, commercial roofing, and 24 hour emergency roof repairs. Emergency repairs, perhaps, is one of the most important services, because a roof that has been damage by a storm or strong winds has to be repaired immediately or else, further damage can be incurred inside the home and possibly even cause injuries to people living in the house or building.

Those who need more information about the roofing services offered by Versatile Roofing Pros in Maple Grove and surrounding areas can visit their new website or contact them by phone.
