November 27, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Coolray HVAC in Atlanta, Georgia has announced that they are now a TrustDale Certified partner. The company recently announced that they are now featured in a number of positive reviews from their customers. Coolray provides a number of HVAC services including heating and air conditioning unit installations and repairs.

A representative for TrustDale says, "Our certification process is pretty strict. Companies must go through a seven point process that shows us that they provide only the highest quality of products and services to their customers before we certify them as a partner."

Those who are interested can visit TrustDale online to read the Coolray Atlanta reviews HVAC customers have left for them. Coolray has been in business since 1966, providing a number of plumbing, heating and air conditioning services for their customers. The company says that they are honored to be a trusted partner of TrustDale and that they will continue to provide their customers with the best services in the Atlanta area for all of their HVAC needs.

A representative for Coolray HVAC says that they base their business on honesty and dependable services. They back all of their products and services with a peace of mind guarantee that ensures complete customer satisfaction. The company hires only NATE certified technicians to ensure that every job is done properly and to the satisfaction of the home or business owner.

"Our goal is to be your choice for plumbing, heating and air conditioning products and services," says the Coolray representative. "We offer fair pricing and guarantees for all of our work to ensure that you get exactly what you want and need for your home or business."

The company representative states that they only hire experienced and skilled technicians and that all of their employees, including their sales representatives, call center workers and installation crews, are trained to provide the highest quality of services to their customers. The company says that interested customers in Atlanta and the surrounding areas can look online to see a number of Coolray HVAC reviews from customers that are all more than satisfied with their services.

Coolray states that they only sell the highest quality equipment and offer warranties and guarantees to back up their products. Each new Carrier system that they sell comes with a full ten year guarantee on parts and labor and they offer a CoolCare Promise for all customers that if anything is not perfectly satisfactory, they will visit again and make it right. A TrustDale representative states that it is this dedication to customer satisfaction that has made them a certified partner and that they trust that Coolray customers will be completely satisfied with every job that the HVAC company performs.

Coolray says that their complete satisfaction promise means that a technician will return to the home or business as many times as it takes to get it right or they will offer the customer a refund. The company also has a live answer center that is available around the clock, even on weekends and holidays in order to keep their customers comfortable in their homes. The company says that they understand that issues with heating and cooling rarely happen during normal hours and that they have technicians on call to perform emergency services as needed for their customers.

TrustDale says that another reason that Coolray was chosen for certification is because they do not use subcontractors. Every job is performed by an employee of the HVAC company and all of those employees undergo strict background checks and routine drug tests to ensure that they meet the strict quality standards that Coolray is known for. The company states that customers can call the directly or visit them online to schedule an appointment and that their official company website offers more information on the services that they provide as well as pricing, products and other information pertinent to those in need of heating and cooling installation and repairs.
