December 10, 2018 -
Dr. Amauri Caversan, B.Sc., N.D. of the Dr. Amauri Wellness Centre recently published a blog post about NAD IV therapy treatments and why it is the ideal choice for addiction recovery. He also reveals the additional benefits, or positive side effects, of NAD IV therapy outside of addiction treatment.

When asked about this type of therapy, Dr. Amauri offered to clarify, ?We offer a lot of types of IV therapy. Right now, with our pre-set combinations, there are over 30, and I even customize them beyond that for personalized treatments for my patients. For example, Vitamin B12 IV therapy is a popular treatment for people looking for a quick boost. With the NAD IV therapy treatments, we are helping those in addiction recovery. The IV treatment provides a boost of vitamins and minerals that help with the side-effects of withdrawal, but also boost serotonin levels in a way that help the patient not feel like they need the drug to feel better - they?ll feel better already.?

In his blog post, NAD IV Therapy - Everything You Need To Know About ?The Crown Jewel of Detox,? Dr.

Amauri elaborates on the intricacies of the treatment. He explains that NAD is an acronym for nicotinamide adenine dinucleotide, a B-vitamin derivative. He further clarifies that it provides energy and essentially jumpstarts the brain. It provides a system flush to get drugs out of the system, curbs the cravings and provides relief from the withdrawal, and provides natural energy. This iv therapy allows the addict in recovery to also have increased concentration, improved mental clarity, enhanced memory, and a better mood.

The Dr. Amauri Wellness Center also offers other cutting-edge treatments for their patients. Some of these treatments include naturopathic medicine, shockwave therapy, cold-laser therapy, and other nutritional IV therapy treatments. Dr. Amauri?s approach to medicine is backed by evidence-based science and focuses on natural vitamins and minerals to improve health and wellness.
