

Plumbing Issues Can Leave More Than A Bad Smell, Plumber Says

December 14, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Sturgeon Falls, Ontario based North Plumbing and Mechanical would like to announce that following the recent winter cold snap followed by milder weather, many homeowners and commercial properties have found themselves in need of plumbing services, as pipes and joints were affected by the large fall and then rise in temperatures.

"No one likes to be left with the mess when plumbing work is not done properly? besides the mess and stench, trying to find a reputable firm who can fix it permanently can be costly," added Dave Fortier. "Here at North Plumbing & Mechanical, we take pride in providing a professional, licensed and insured service for all our commercial and residential customers."

North Plumbing & Mechanical offers Plumbing Services to both Commercial and Residential properties. Whether it is a new build, a remodel or renovation, maintenance checks or emergency repair, it is important to ensure that a certified plumber who has undergone proper training is used.

North Plumbing & Mechanical is a Red Seal Licensed and insured plumber which gives owners the added assurance that they receive the 100% safe quality plumbing work they expect to prevent the problem from occurring again.

Commercial Plumbing issues can halt operations if the problem is serious and require a commercial plumbing expert who can identify the problem, quote for the repairs, and resolve the problem quickly. Urgent repairs like clogged drains need to be attended to quickly. Otherwise, the water can overflow and damage the surrounding area, and if affected by water, electrical equipment could short out which could cause even further problems for firms. "Many plumbing companies quote flat rates without even looking at the severity of the problem. This often results in further charges being added to the bill which can be much higher than expected," stated Dave Fortier.

Homeowners looking to remodel or reorganize their home may face Residential Plumbing issues linking up services, ensuring continuity of underfloor heating as well as waste flow issues. When money is tight, they may put off fixing little issues, which then become a much bigger problem like mold on walls. An expert license plumber will help prevent the problem from occurring again.

?Self-designed new builds allow homeowners to get exactly what they want. I always advise having a licensed and insured residential plumber review the plans before breaking ground ? it can save time and money and they might even suggest some options home designers might not have considered. Design flaws can cause delays and prove costly,? said Dan Fortier. For new builds, employ a licensed service provider, like North Plumbing & Mechanical, with experience in new construction plumbing to avoid financial losses due to leakage after the construction base has been laid.

Many owners seek to cut the cost of repairs by taking the cheapest quote to repair what they think is just a leaky faucet. Sewage odors, one of the most common problems in both commercial and residential properties, are often masked by using air fresheners and leaving windows open. Sewage odor issues are the symptom of a bigger problem ? one which can cause health issues.

Hiring a plumber without a valid working license to save money is a big risk ? chances are they will not be insured. If they don't fix the problem permanently, it could result in bigger problems ? a simple drip or odor could be a symptom of pipe or joint leaking, burst sewage pipes and mold on the walls. An expert plumber has the training to undertake the problem identification ? saving costly identification time to locate the site of the problem before they can start repairs.

?Even a small repair job which is not done properly can be costly. If a bathroom or kitchen pipe starts leaking, it can cause damage if it is not repaired properly ? causing problems to the structure, interior walls and even the ventilation,? said Dave Fortier.
