It's no secret that in today's modern world people seem to be quick to criticize and slow to give compliments. That's why when a company is continuously praised in publications for their efforts to do superior work combined with outstanding customer service, they certainly must be doing something right. Such is the case with some newer press coverage that Toronto based Laird & Son Heating & Air Conditioning received.

The recent press release that's being referred to first appeared on the A and Z Homes Magazine website. The general theme of the article was the important things to take into account when hiring a local heating and air conditioning contractor. The article's author, Brian Elijah, specifically mentions Laird & Son Heating & Air Conditioning in the article. He states they are a local furnace repair contractor that consistently does things right when it comes to combining high-quality work with great customer care.

Ron Potter, a spokesperson for Laird & Son, credits much of how they run their business to their experience and knowing what their Toronto area customers demand from them. He says, "We as a furnace repair and air conditioning company have been in business in the Toronto area for over 70 years now. In that time we have grown by shaping our business to meet the ever-changing needs of our area customers. We continue to do that to this day. One thing in that time that has never changed is the way we treat our customers courteously and respectfully.?

Ron Potter went on to add, ?Part of our success also has a lot to do with our talented furnace and air conditioning service techs. Sometimes they don?t get enough credit for how hard they work at doing the difficult job of keeping current?s ultra-sophisticated heating and air conditioning systems. That constant training and learning enable us to meet the challenges and resolve the problems on any type of heating or air conditioning system that our customers have.?

This is not the only time that Laird & Son has been specifically mentioned in a recent press article as a top-notch heating and air conditioning company either. Also in October, they received some favourable press on a website called ?Digital Journal?. In the article, Digital Journal leaned on Laird & Son?s experience to get some insight on why customers should be proactive and get preventative furnace maintenance done before the heavy use heater season hits.

The article also made it a point to mention all of the positive reviews that Laird & Son Heating & Air Conditioning has gotten in several different publications online. It was mentioned that on Google alone the company maintained a 4.5 out of 5 stars rating. That is impressive when one considers the sample size was over 150 reviews.

When this fact was mentioned to Ron Potter the pride he felt in this accomplishment was obvious in his very wide smile. Ron went on to say, ?It?s important that the goals of any company start and end with customer satisfaction. We are a family owned and operated business that lives and works in the community we serve. Working hard and servicing our customers the right way is the very thing we can do every day to give a little back to our community.?

Laird and Son Heating & Air Conditioning bases their business out of Central Toronto but has a service area that encompasses Greater Toronto and many satellite communities around it. They are specialists when it comes to furnace installation and repairs. This heating and air contractor even offers free furnace inspections and repair estimates.

The company also has a wide variety of other heating and air conditioning services they can provide for their customers too. These include everything from boiler repairs to water heater services. Of course, they obviously work on air conditioning units and many people do not realize they also offer advanced duct cleaning services.

Those who want to know more about this progressive heating and air conditioning contractor can look them
