Health and beauty company Lea Louise, based in Hawthorne, CA, have recently released their deep foot exfoliation product on Amazon at a reduced rate. The product usually costs $43, but is currently available for just $21. The special offer hopes to help people achieve feet as soft as a babys foot.

"Our feet go through so much on a daily basis!" says Adrian Lew from Lea Louise. "We stuff them in socks and shoes and then expect them to carry the full weight of our body all day long, sometimes in high heels. Plus, research has shown that we neglect our feet at the end of the day as well, which means we don't even thank them for all the hard work they did for us. Our deep foot exfoliation product aims to change all of that, creating truly baby soft feet."

The product, which is lavender scented, exfoliates the skin so that it starts peeling. The peel is old, dead skin, and once this is gone, it allows healthy new skin to appear. This makes the feet feel completely soft again, as well as being completely healthy. As an added benefit, foot odor is also significantly reduced.

Lea Louise are committed to their customer service. This is why they have updated the product to ensure the packaging, instructions and free helpful guide with hints and tips on how to best use the product and look after the feet, is now available in English and no longer in Japanese. Furthermore, they have included a number of free extras.

"Our foot peel comes with a free publication full of useful hints and tips for proper foot care," adds Adrian Lew. "Additionally, we include a free nail buffer that can be used on both toe and finger nails. Most importantly, each of our packets includes four, rather than two, products. This allows people to repeat the process after a month, or to give the other set away to someone else."

Unfortunately, the special offer will only be on for a few weeks and while stocks last. Customers are encouraged to get theirs quickly.
