

Austin Eye Care Center Discusses Exercises for Children with Lazy Eye in New Blog

December 15, 2018

December 15, 2018 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Austin, TX - Austin Vision Therapy Center dedicated their most recent blog to helping parents whose children are suffering from amblyopia, also known as lazy eye. The blog first explains the symptoms, which include head tilting, fumbling when picking up objects, and one eye crossing at times.

An appointment with an Austin eye care specialist is recommended, but there are also exercises which a child can do at home, which the blog explains in detail. Some such exercises include enjoyable activities like coloring and even playing video games. Of course, the blog explains the proper ways in which such activities should be done, typically including wearing an eyepatch.

Seeking vision care in Austin to correct problematic vision is an important first step in helping a child be successful at school and socially.. Having a fully functional vision system is vital for anyone looking to have a high quality of life.

Austin Vision Therapy Center diagnoses and treats a variety of vision problems. Information about vision therapy and answers to other questions can be found in the company's blog at
