Dependable Homebuyers, whose slogan is "We Buy Washington DC Homes" is still a relative newcomer to Washington DC's home buying community. Although they are experiencing rapid growth and expansion, they are always aware that every day is a learning opportunity to improve. This desire to continuously be improving is why they are delighted to become a member of ActiveRain. The intention is to not only share their expertise, but also add to their knowledgebase. Building a network of connections and relationships with other real estate professionals in Washington, DC will improve their ability to help homeowners who wish to sell their homes quickly. "As with any industry, the minute you feel that you know everything, is the minute you are setting yourself up for failure," said Evan Roberts of Dependable Homebuyers. "Although we have been very successful and are experiencing a record year, our thirst for knowledge, advice, and information remains unquenched. We are determined to learn everything possible about this industry, and there is no better way to achieve this, that by being an active member of ActiveRain. Although we are keen to learn from our association with ActiveRain, we are also committed to helping the network grow, and sharing our knowledge and expertise moving forward. In the short period of time that we have been a member, we have formed some excellent relationships and learned a myriad of information, and we have barely scratched the surface. We are convinced that being a member of ActiveRain, will benefit our staff and company immensely."
