

Tree Service Company Adds New Service Area In Anaheim CA

January 07, 2019

January 07, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Valley Tree Care LLC, a tree care service provider in Corona, CA, has announced that they have established a new service in Anaheim and surrounding areas as of January 1, 2019. Anaheim is only around 20 miles from Corona and the company wants people to know that they expect to add even more service areas in the future. This is in line with their mission to help as many homeowners as possible with their tree problems.

Amanda Carter, spokesperson for Valley Tree Care LLC, says, "We're glad to be able to extend our services to the people in Anaheim and the neighboring areas. There may be times when homeowners may need tree removal especially when trees are dead or dying. You want your property and landscaping to look great and trees are a large part of this because they not only provide privacy but they help keep you cool with shade. There are many health benefits to having trees on your property but they also come with some risks. In some cases, you may need emergency tree service, tree branch trimming, or even stump removal. In all of these cases, our company can help you with tree removal as we are a professional tree service."

It is generally expected of trees to be there for a long time, even longer than people. Nevertheless, they will not last forever. Diseases, pests, lightning and strong winds can harm them. For instance, a lightning strike can burn a tree. In fact, some trees may appear to be healthy on the outside but inside, much of it has already been eaten away by disease and even pests. Damaged trees may be destroyed further by insects and pests who love to make a home in rotten trunks or tree branches. This is where Valley Tree Care LLC comes in because their professional arborists know which trees are dead or dying and know how to remove them properly.

Amanda Carter warns that dead or dying trees have to be removed as soon as possible because of the threat posed by insects and pests who tend to build their nests in such trees. Insects and pests can bring with them diseases that could affect the other trees nearby and the people living in the property. When the pests living in the dead and dying trees run out of food, they will likely reach the home in their search for food. This poses a danger to the family and to the property.

Amanda Carter explains, "There are many reasons why you might want to remove a tree from your property. If you have a dead tree that is still standing up this can pose a hazard to your house or your vehicle. If you get a strong storm a dead tree is more vulnerable to fall over than the tree that is healthy. This dead tree could destroy your property and put you out thousands of dollars. If you have a dead tree on your property that is falling over in a storm give our company a call as we can provide you with emergency tree service."

Furthermore, some trees may have grown so big that branches are now practically touching the house or even the electric lines along the street. This is dangerous not just for the trees but also for the power lines and the house itself. Strong winds can cause the branches to hit the electric power lines and a part of the property. However, it is important to understand that removing a tree or trimming its branches cannot be a do-it-yourself task. Professionals are required who know how to trim the branches properly or remove a tree in a safe manner.

Valley Tree Care LLC offers professional arborist services such as tree trimming, stump grinding, emergency tree removal, tree and branch removal, and lot clearing.
