LiveEco has announced the launch of a new product onto the Amazon marketplace. The company states that their 60 pack of emoji erasers make great raffle prize ideas for schools, parents, parties or other events.

Christina Abels, a representative for the company says, "These are super fun emoji erasers that parents and teachers are going to love. We know that motivating children to do better is a great way to get them to commit, so we are offering our emoji erasers to help teachers and parents to provide an incentive for good behavior."

Abels says that the 60 pack of erasers includes five each of 12 different emojis. Erasers are all sustainably made and free of BPA. Abels states that they are completely safe for children, being hypoallergenic, free of latex and hygienic. She states that LiveEco cares about the environment and about keeping children safe so they have designed their erasers to be safer than others on the market.

"Not only are these safe, and fun," says Abels, "But they erase clean every time. These aren't like other novelty erasers that just look cute and don't work. Ours will do the job that they are designed to do and they do it with an adorable emoji face on them.?

Abels states that anyone, parents or teachers, who typically purchase erasers in bulk will find these to be a good deal. She says that they help to get kids excited about learning and even about doing chores when used at home. She states that their Amazon page has a number of testimonials from parents and teachers who use the erasers currently and claim that they help their children to be a bit more excited about the learning process.

The erasers are currently available for purchase on the Amazon marketplace and Abels says that they make a wonderful gift for kids of all ages. She states that many parents purchase them to put inside gift bags for at school parties or at home birthday parties. Emojis have become very popular, particularly with younger children and pre-teens. Abels says that their emoji erasers are quite popular and that they fit in perfectly with other emoji items. Shopping statistics over the past holiday season show that emoji gifts, such as pillows, bedding, and clothing have gained in popularity over the past few years. Many manufacturers are now putting emojis on a number of items for children of all ages and Abels states that their emoji erasers are perfect for kids who love emojis.

Parents or teachers who are looking for a fun way to motivate children to do their schoolwork can check out the new erasers on the LiveEco official Amazon seller's page. Abels states that they have plenty of the eraser 60 packs available but says that once parents see how excited their children are about using the erasers, they may sell out quickly so she urges those who are interested to visit the site today to learn more.

Abels says that the company welcomes reviews and always encourages new customers to visit them on Amazon and read through their various product reviews. Reviews for the erasers are all positive and those interested can read more on the Amazon page for LiveEco. One customer states that the erasers, "Look and work great," and another states that they, "Made my son want to actually do his homework, even if he did spend some time erasing just to write the answer in again."

LiveEco states that they only offer products that are safe for the environment and more importantly, for children. Parents and teachers who are interested in learning more about the erasers or any of the emoji themed products that the company currently has available can visit them on Amazon to get a look at all of their products. The company states that they welcome any questions and that customers can contact them through Amazon to learn more.
