January 19, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Dr. Steven Kacel, a prominent dentist in Northbrook IL uses the latest in cutting edge technology for all of his dental patients. Dr. Kacel states that his practice uses only the best in technology and procedures to give his patients the most up to date dental care.

"We strive to remain on top of all of the latest in dental technology," says Dr. Kacel. "One of the ways that we currently do this is by offering CariVu infrared cavity detection. This, along with digital x-rays help to battle tooth decay and protect the oral health of our patients."

Digital x-rays give dental professionals a more convenient way to thoroughly examine the teeth. These x-rays use less radiation than traditional x-rays, so they are much safer for patients, and they offer a more in depth look at any dental issues that patients may be facing. Dr. Kacel states that his practice relies on digital x-rays, both for the safety of his patients and for the information about the patient's oral health that these types of x-rays offer.

"We are pleased to offer our patients the benefits of CariVu infrared cavity detection," says Dr. Kacel. "This is a great diagnostic tool that can examine teeth and assess any problems much more quickly than anything else that has been introduced. It is also much more comfortable for patients and less obtrusive than traditional methods of searching for cavities.?

Dr. Kasel offers both of these dental advances in his Northbrook dentist office. The dentist states that early detection of cavities and other dental issues is crucial in helping to keep teeth and gums healthy. He says that because of this, his office will continue to use only the latest in dental technology in order to ensure that his patients receive the best dental care available in the Northbrook area.
