Dr. Ilona Casellini with Swiss Quality Smile in Los Angeles, California, is currently considered to be one of the best Invisalign orthodontists in West Los Angeles. According to her patients, this is due to the extensive experience that Dr. Casellini has in utilizing Invisalign in her office.

"Our goal is always what is best for our patients," says Dr. Casellini. "We offer a wide range of services and are experienced in each one. We want our patients to walk out of our office with the most beautiful smile possible and in many cases, Invisalign is the way to go."

Invisalign braces got their start in 1997 when they were introduced by two Stanford University business students. The invisible braces began being used by orthodontists just two years later in 1999. Since that time, Invisalign braces have graced the smiles of millions of dental patients who were in need of alignment or other dental services. These braces work just like traditional metal braces but to a greater extent, because they are virtually invisible to the naked eye. Many teenagers and young adults prefer Invisalign to traditional braces because no one knows that they are actually wearing braces but they still get the same benefit of having braces to realign their teeth.

The cosmetic dentist in Westwood says, "Many patients have been helped in our office with Invisalign. We ensure that we are always caught up on all of the latest technology in the dental world and we truly believe these to be the best way to straighten crooked teeth in a majority of our patients."

Dr. Casellini states that she and her entire staff are fully trained and educated on Invisalign and that the office has years of experience in providing these services to patients. Invisalign orthodontics is a more modern approach to providing patients with straight teeth. The process involves using a set of aligners that are custom made for each patient. Instead of being made from metal like traditional braces, the aligners are made from plastic that is virtually invisible when worn. Aligners shift the teeth into place over time and have been said to be more comfortable than their metal counterparts.

Dr. Casellini says that the process is easy. Patients simply replace the aligners every two weeks with a new one that continues to push the teeth into place. She states that she and her staff enjoy seeing their patients with smiles on their faces when they receive Invisalign or any of the other cosmetic dentistry services that they provide.

The dental practice provides a wide range of cosmetic services such as Invisalign, as well as dentures, crowns, implants and more. Dr. Casellini says that she believes that everyone deserves to have a beautiful smile but more importantly, everyone deserves to enjoy good oral health. She states that her main concern is and will always be the overall health of her patients and as studies show that misaligned or otherwise unhealthy teeth can lead to a number of serious health concerns, Dr. Casellini states that she urges patients to schedule an appointment anytime they are facing dental concerns. The dentist states that she is carrying on a tradition of providing patients with healthy and beautiful smiles; a tradition that began with her grandparents at the beginning of the 1900s.

Dr. Casellini, DMD owns and operates Swiss Quality Smile in Los Angeles. She states that any patient who has crooked or otherwise imperfect teeth who would like to learn more about Invisalign can do so on the practice's official website. Dr. Casellini states that she has been educated and experienced in this practice and states that she looks forward to helping patients in and around Los Angeles to receive healthier and more beautiful smiles. Those who are interested in scheduling an appointment with Dr. Casellini will find direct contact information for the dental practice, as well as an online appointment submission form on their website.
