Charlotte Home Pros spokesperson Phillip Payne says, "We have been expanding our home remodeling services for homeowners in Charlotte and nearby areas. If you are wanting to add value to your Charlotte house, in order to customize how you have always wanted it or because you are planning on selling it, you don't want to have to invest money into a home remodeling project with a low ROI (return on investment). However, it can be challenging to determine which remodeling projects will provide you with the best value for your money - particularly if you are on a limited budget."

Phillip Payne also pointed out that there has been a significant increase in the number of homeowners wanting find ways to make their homes look better. However, not all modifications to a home can offer a large enough ROI to justify spending money on them. Charlotte Home Pros is recommending a number of projects that are likely to offer the biggest ROI. Those who would like to visit their office can check their Google Maps page at <https://goo.gl/maps/xfbXAok1EGS2>.

The recommendations from Charlotte Home Pros for high ROI projects include kitchen remodeling, bathroom remodeling, home additions and detached garages, addition of decks and patios, and construction of man caves. Phillip Payne explains that the kitchen and the bathroom are two of the most important parts of the home. The kitchen is where the food is cooked and the members of the family often come together in the kitchen. Meanwhile, the bathroom is considered by most people to be the most important part of the home. This is because the bathroom is where people start and end their day. They use the bathroom in the morning to take a bath, brush their teeth, put on makeup, etc. And when they arrive home from work, they go to the bathroom to take a bath, relax in the bathtub, etc., before going to bed. Thus, the more presentable the kitchen and bathroom, the higher the value of the home.

Meanwhile, man caves have become a popular trend and therefore have become a worthwhile remodeling project. This allows homeowners to hit two birds with one stone ? they get to have a way to get away from everything at least for a certain period of time and enjoy their free time, and at the same time they get to boost the value of their home. Moreover, since most homes have basements that are merely used for storage, homeowners can just have the basement converted into a man cave.

The addition of a deck or a patio is for families who love to enjoy the sun and the outdoor environment. These are also great places for holding parties and other events. But most of all, the deck or patio can add to the living space or square footage of the home, which will surely increase the value of the home drastically.

For growing families, home extensions are essential. Adding a home extension or a detached garage, or converting the basement into living space could do the trick. The increase in living space will surely boost the value of the home significantly. Of course, creating additional space may require more extensive work and more costly. But consulting with a professional can result in finding innovative ways to increase the living space without spending too much.
