Irving, Texas based SAHE Products has announced the launch of their first fitness product. The company has announced that their new hand strengthener is now available on the Amazon marketplace. SAHE Products provides items for consumers that typically include those used in the kitchen and throughout the home.

A representative for the company says, "We are thrilled to have this first fitness product in our lineup. We believe that it will help consumers tremendously, so it is in line with our goal of offering useful and environmentally friendly products to our customers."

The product, which can be viewed on Amazon at https://www.amazon.com/dp/B078333333, is designed to provide strength and agility to those suffering from carpal tunnel syndrome, tendonitis, and other medical issues. The company states that the hand strengthener is made from high quality steel and features a stainless steel spring that makes it durable. The grips are designed to fit all hand sizes and feature a non-slip gripper to keep users from dropping it or losing their grip because of sweat and other issues.

"It is designed to be portable and is really lightweight," says the company representative. "It's perfect for taking along in purses or luggage or workout bags."

Hand grip strengtheners are recommended many times by doctors for their patients who are recovering from surgery on the wrist or hand and for patients who suffer from any number of muscle or ligament concerns in the wrist. These devices are held in the hand and the user squeezes them together, helping to strengthen muscles and tendons in the hand and wrist and further up the arm.

Studies show that strengthening the muscles, tendons and ligaments in the hands and wrists can help those who suffer from issues that are commonly experienced by workers who type or otherwise use their hands all day. Hand strengtheners provide an effective way to strengthen those muscles by offering just enough resistance so that the user has to squeeze the device, which in turn helps to build muscles when used regularly.

SAHE Products states that they always aim to provide products to customers that are useful in their every day lives. They state that they are pleased to now be offering fitness products to go along with their wide selection of household items. They state that every product they offer is designed to promote healthier homes and products are safe for families and for the environment.

SAHE Products is a family owned and operated company that works to help consumers to reduce their carbon footprint. The company representative states that their newest item, the hand strengthener, is now available for purchase on the Amazon marketplace, along with their various other items. Those who are interested can learn more by visiting the company on their official Amazon seller's page.

Originally, SAHE Products offered items to consumers that were useful in the kitchen. Their wooden kitchen utensils and water bottles are highly popular items. The company states that since they have been providing quality kitchen accessories for a number of years, they felt that the time was right to begin offering consumers affordable and high quality fitness gear and products. The hand strengthener is the first in a line of fitness items that the company plans to offer through the Amazon marketplace.

Those who are interested in learning more about the new hand device or any of the products that the company sells can visit them on Amazon for a complete listing of the items that they offer. Their Amazon page also includes reviews from other customers who have purchased and used a number of their products. Those interested can read those reviews to get a better idea of the quality of the items that are offered by SAHE Products. The company also states that they are always available to their customers to answer any questions that they may have. Customers can contact the company directly or through their Amazon marketplace page.
