

NYC Law Firm Offers to Cover Traffic Tickets for Furloughed Federal Workers

January 23, 2019

January 23, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

New York City -- NYC law firm Feifer & Greenberg is offering free legal services for traffic tickets issued to federal workers affected by the government shutdown.

This offer is available to any currently furloughed federal employee who has been issued a traffic ticket and charged with a moving violation in New York City during the ongoing shutdown.

For more than 20 years, attorneys Scott Feifer and Matthew Greenberg have helped thousands of clients successfully settle or dismiss traffic violations. They are now offering their services free of charge to government workers who may be issued a traffic ticket during a time they can least afford one.

"It's tough. You think you have a relatively secure job and suddenly your paychecks stop coming because you're caught in the middle of a purely political situation that really has nothing to do with you or your job," says attorney Scott Feifer. "With around 800,000 people affected by this, we just thought this was something we could do to help. We know it may only be a very small percentage of these furloughed workers that end up requesting our assistance but this is what we know and what we do and how we thought we might be able to at least offer a modicum of relief to some of these workers. Efforts by a large number of small businesses could have a significant overall impact."

Federal workers affected by this shutdown that have been charged with a moving violation in NYC during the shutdown and are interested in free legal representation, please contact Feifer & Greenberg Law Firm at (212) 255-5556 or by email at info@tickethelp.com.
