January 31, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Sahe Products, a consumer products business based in Irving, Texas, has announced that they have released their bamboo kitchenware for the UK and European market. This is made up of four pieces of wooden ladles made from solid bamboo. These have been designed to be environment-friendly and have been hand carved from a solid piece of bamboo to ensure that there would be no need for adhesives or glue that can contain toxic materials. To get more information about this product, people can check out the Amazon page at <https://amzn.to/2CE6gXt>.

Sahe Products spokesperson H Misra says, "Cooking is a creative and messy hobby. It can be done by both professionals or amateurs, from kids or adults anyone can cook. But why not make it easier or faster with the Sahe Products Kitchen Ladle Cooking Set. This is a kitchen set that would both benefit you cooking and cleaning wise. You would love to spend hours mastering your craft with this set!?"

These are authentic wooden kitchen tools made from bamboo and they have been polished with safe food oil to minimize friction and damage to the wooden ladles or the pots and pans. At the bottom of the holder are two small holes to drain out water, thus ensuring that water does not accumulate in the holder, which would be unhygienic. The wooden handle means it is safe and comfortable to use even at high temperatures. The handle will never get hot because wood is a poor conductor of heat. And because of the smooth surfaces of the ladles, they are easy to clean.

Sahe Products has also ensured that the wooden kitchen ladles are durable and will not get deformed or crack when used in high temperatures. Furthermore, there is no glue or adhesive used because the whole ladle has been carved from one piece of bamboo wood. Thus, there would be no concern about toxic chemicals leaching from the ladles when they are used in high temperatures. The set is of commercial quality, which means that it can be used in food shops, bakeries, restaurants, catering businesses, and more. They are suitable for cooking sauces, oatmeal, soups, casseroles, and more.

Meanwhile, the wooden ladles have been found to be best for cooking and salad making because they are so durable they won't bend, crack, splinter or break. This prevents the growth of bacteria, which could be dangerous to health. Each ladle measures 13.5 inches by 3.7 inches by 3.1 inches and weighs 11.4 ounces.

Sahe Products has also introduced two more of its products in Amazon UK, to target customers from the UK and other European countries. One of these is the tea infuser bottle, which can also be used as a cold brew coffee maker and glass travel bottle. It is also provided with a removable stainless steel tea infuser strainer for loose leaf tea and fruit water. It also comes with a neoprene sleeve with handle for easy carrying, especially when traveling. This portable sports glass water bottle is leak-proof, which ensures no leakages and messes. Thus, this product can be used in the home, when traveling, in the gym, during camping trips, and while exercising on the treadmill or exercise bike.

Another product that Sahe Products has introduced to the UK market and other European countries is the non-stick silicone baking mat. It comes with a basting brush for the convenience of those who love to bake macarons, pizza or cookies. One important advantage of using this particular baking mat is that it allows for even cooking, unlike in metal pans. It is environment-friendly because it allows the user to avoid using parchment paper and the baking mat can be reused many times. It is also easy to store when not in use. It can simply be rolled up or left flat in the kitchen drawer. Furthermore, it is certified to be free from BPA and that it is manufactured from non-toxic food grade silicone, so there's no worry when using it for cooking.
