

Newark Home Protection Pros Expands Home Security Systems in Newark, NJ

January 28, 2019

January 28, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Newark Home Protection Pros, a security system supplier based in Newark, NJ, has announced that they have expanded their services. The company serves Newark and the surrounding Essex County areas. So residents who are looking for a security system can count on this company to help with their needs. The security company's office is excited about their expansion.

On the company's media page, at <https://www.pressadvantage.com/organization/newark-home-protection-pros>, Todd Remington, says, "Professional and thorough, a home security review from Newark Home Protection Pros will shed light on security challenges unique to your home & lifestyle. For homes in Newark NJ, we can specify a custom solution to meet your security challenges head-on." The company provides home security systems with features like video monitoring, a home security app for mobile phones, tamper-resistant technology, and wireless motion sensors with onboard cameras.

The security company says that, according to police, about 60% of home burglaries failed because the houses that the burglars targeted had an alarm system. Alarm systems are good deterrents for home intrusions because burglars tend to choose homes with fewer challenges such as lack of visible cameras, bad outdoor lighting, etc. Kim Wetzel, the smart home editor for Digital Trends, says, "Beyond doorbells, we expect to see the home security field continue to grow, with several companies offering newer, sleeker high-resolution video cameras, home security systems with things like drone security guards, and home-monitoring devices with all kinds of artificial intelligence features. Expect some even smarter smart locks to be introduced, too." Digital Trends provides comprehensive product reviews, important breaking news, and deep dive features for the consumer looking to buy a new gadget but doesn't care about technical specs and just wants to know how it works and how it feels to use every day.

Security System News (SSN), a company that covers the security system industry, in their SSN News Poll, says that the majority of respondents see continued growth for 2019. Paul Ragusa, the editor of SSN, said, "As we reflect on 2018, this month's news poll gauges the overall state of the industry. The majority of News Poll respondents are bullish on 2019 with 85 percent saying that they see continued growth. Todd Remington says Newark Home Protection Pros are experts in the field of home security and they're going to ride the growing wave of demand for home security systems.

The company gives customers free quotes for interested homeowners. Their video monitoring operates day and night to protect the home. It has full-color resolution, adjustable pan/tilt, and night-vision technology. The home security app lets homeowners monitor their homes from anywhere while they're away. The company's interactive security technology protects and monitors a home 24/7. Their wireless motion sensors and image sensors provide visual feedback to help a homeowner keep an eye on what's happening at their property. For those reasons and more Todd Remington says in a link on the company's Google Maps page, at <https://goo.gl/maps/GaLgFPcVCRo>, "Don't wait a moment longer to get that home alarm systems installation work done! Call Newark Home Protection Pros today." Homeowners can call the company at (862) 307-9090 for more information.

Newark Home Protection Pros says there are additional things to consider when getting a home security system. The cost varies and generally speaking, the bigger the property, the higher the cost of the security system. There are two types of systems, wireless and cabled. Wireless systems can be more invisible while cabled systems are tough to install because the cables and wires have to be hidden for the equipment to work. A monitoring service, that should be affiliated with local police, is needed to send in authorities within an hour to a max of 4 hours if the alarm is triggered.
