Lenz Custom Concrete in Boise, Idaho has announced the opening of their new design studio. The company states that customers can now plan and see their stamped concrete patios come to life, choosing the texture, color and budget for their backyards.

Brian Lenz, owner of the company says, "We are thrilled to now be able to help our customers to completely design their patios, driveways or other concrete structures. Our website is filled with images, testimonials and directions to our storefront location. We take every step to ensure that our customers get the designs that they want for the backyards of their dreams."

The Boise company provides a wide range of concrete services for residential and commercial clients. They currently serve customers in the Treasure Valley, McCall and Emmett and have a number of their designs in various other locations around the state. Lenz states that adding a project calculator to their website has helped them to assist many customers in finding the design that they want yet staying within their allotted budget.

The company states that their new design studio helps customers even further by allowing them to envision the look that they want for their patio by offering them a look at the stamped and decorative concrete designs that they offer. Lenz states that the company is also a licensed contractor for flatwork and foundations as well as cement removal. They offer decorative concrete that can be colored, stamped or textured to meet the design needs of their customers.

"We are a small family owned and operated business," says Lenz. "As such, we take a personal approach to meeting the design wants and needs of each of our customers. We provide personalization that our customers want for their own unique designs, while still keeping them within their budgets. We operate as a small company but are big enough to help any customer in the area to get the concrete designs that they want."

Lenz states that those who have questions about their concrete can contact the company directly or use the contact form on their website to learn more. He states that the company offers free in-person estimates for any job and can help customers to select a design that is perfect for their outdoor living spaces.

Brian and Lisa Lenz founded the company nearly 20 years ago and state that they have, since their first day, worked with the goal of complete customer satisfaction. The company states that they have built their reputation on competitive pricing and unique designs. Their company website has a number of reviews that have been posted by past customers, outlining the professionalism that the company offers in addition to their personalization of every project.

Lenz states that they offer a number of design looks on their website for those who would rather do their research online. The website also offers a calculator tool that helps consumers to determine how much they can expect to spend for their chosen design. Lenz states that this calculator, along with their online image gallery of projects, can help customers in and around Boise to get an idea of what they want for their patio. The company's new design studio can also help home and business owners to get a better idea of how they want their concrete structure designed and what they can expect in terms of time to complete the project and overall cost.

Lenz states that they offer a free written estimate to help customers to determine their budget. He states that they keep their customers' needs in mind, informing them of exactly what is needed before they begin any job. Lenz continues that the company employs only qualified and experienced contractors, ensuring that every single customer is satisfied with every job.

The company states that they welcome those who would like to visit them in person to view their new design studio. Those who are interested can also learn more about their various designs by visiting their website.
