The Key Guys Offers Help With Key Fobs In Cold Weather

February 02, 2019

MINNEAPOLIS, MN - February 02, 2019 -
A Minneapolis, Minnesota based locksmith company has announced help for customers with their vehicle keys, key fobs and doors and handles in the winter months. The company states that the batteries that power key fobs can often lose their power in extremely cold temperatures. They state that if a fob is not working properly, consumers can contact them for assistance. The company recently received a number of best locksmith reviews on various websites, naming them the most reliable and knowledgeable locksmith company in the region.

Bryan Nystrom, a representative for the company says, ?Minnesota gets cold in the winter, sometimes with temperatures that fall well below zero, and that is not even counting the windchill factors. When these extreme temperatures occur, they can hinder keys from working properly. We have the experience and the tools replace keys and fobs as needed to get them working properly again.?

The company states that they have a fleet of vehicles that are ready to be dispatched to any customer who needs them. Nystrom says that they typically respond to calls immediately, which means that customers will not have to wait in the cold for hours for someone to arrive that can assist them in getting their doors open and their vehicles on the road again.

The Key Guys offer locksmith services throughout the Minneapolis St Paul Twin Cities region. The company states that they provide their services at any time of the day or night, even on weekends and holidays. ?We can create replacement keys right there on the scene if needed, or simply change the batteries in a key fob to get it working again.?

The company was founded in 1988 and has been providing professional locksmith services since. Nystrom states that they serve individual customers as well as dealerships and many service management departments by offering replacement keys, lockout services and more. He says that they hire only the most qualified individuals to work with them to ensure that every customer has the best possible experience.

Nystrom continues that with extreme temperatures in Minnesota during winter, consumers cannot risk standing outside waiting on someone to come and unlock their vehicle or otherwise get it going again. He states that the company works quickly, getting to their customers as fast as they can to handle any issue that they may be having with their car keys or locks. Their list of services includes manufacturing backup or secondary keys and removing keys that have been broken off in locks, which Nystrom says can happen during the cold winter months when locks are frozen or when the cold temperatures push consumers into trying to quickly gain access to vehicles without checking the locks for ice first. In addition, the company provides programmed keys and other services as needed.

Nystrom states that those living in and around the Minneapolis area can learn more about their services by visiting the company online. He states that they offer information on their website about what to do in cold weather and how to know when assistance is needed, such as when locks are frozen or when their battery operated fobs are not working properly.

Those who have questions can reach out to the company through their website or contact them directly by phone or email. The site has an online form that customers can use to schedule a service or those in need can call them directly to get someone dispatched to them instantly. Nystrom states that customers should never wait to have their key fobs repaired and states that they are ready to help those in the area with their cold weather car needs this winter. He continues that those in the area who need lockout services can schedule a quote by using their online form.
