Chilliwack, BC ? Reclaimed Massage Therapy, Health and Wellness Group launched a new Google Street View virtual walkthrough of their Chilliwack massage therapy clinic for future patients who want to preview the clinic's exterior and interior space.

According to an independent study by IPSOS for Google, 44% of consumers use mapping products when searching for local businesses. On average, 41% of these searches result in an on-site visit. And map listings with photos and a virtual tour are twice as likely to generate interest. The Registered Massage Therapists at Reclaimed Health Group are counting on their 360 virtual walkthroughs to create more interest, calls and bookings.

"We're so pleased with how the 360 turned out and so proud to show it off to our patients. In a short four months, we've already accumulated almost 5,000 views on our 360 virtual tour. We're confident our space is perfectly suited to clients who want a calm and relaxing space for treatments. Even our practitioners are proud of working here," says Michelle Brown, Reclaimed Health Group's Clinic Manager and Registered Massage Therapist.

"Reclaimed Health Group has designed a beautiful and relaxing space for their patients. I encourage viewers to walk through their treatment rooms and even up at the ceilings; it's gorgeous! To be able to showcase this space virtually will give future patients a good idea what they'll expect to see before walking in for treatments. I trust the Google study metrics to be accurate. Even if it's only half those metrics, it's still a win for the clinic," shares Sherman Hu, the Google Street View Trusted Photographer and award-winning Search Engine Optimization specialist that Brown hired to produce their 360 virtual tour walkthrough.

Brown is not only proud of how their space looked in 360 but compared to many Chilliwack massage therapy clinics that do not provide direct billing, Reclaimed does. Direct billing affords their patients to have more frequent treatments without paying out-of-pocket and to be able to follow their treatment plan as recommended by their RMT. Furthermore, their online booking system allows their patients the convenience and freedom to self-book their appointments and recurring treatments.
