January 31, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Frontier Wildlife Control has announced that they can now help anyone in St. Louis and the vicinity with their raccoon removal services. The company cautions against anyone that has a raccoon problem at their home not being proactive in getting that critter removed. That's why they offer prompt Raccoon Removal in St Louis and other nearby areas.

One of the spokespersons for the company named Bruce talked about why it's important not to let raccoons set up a home in the attic or other parts of the house. He says, "Raccoons may appear to be funny and friendly on TV but they are anything but in real life. When they invade your home they can do a tremendous amount of damage in a short period of time. These pests are known to destroy insulation, wiring, ductwork and even the wooden support structure of a home. They can also leave horrible smells in the areas that they breed and relieve themselves in. Not to mention, raccoons are known to have the potential to spread a wide variety of diseases too."

Bruce also states that raccoons don't just have to nest in someone's home in order to do large amounts of damage either. They often take up residence in such places as swimming pool covers, areas where garbage is kept, and near home gardens. Raccoons are also known to be vicious when accidentally cornered and they are one of the main carriers of rabies in the St. Louis area.

Bruce also dispelled some common misconceptions about raccoons. Bruce said, "Many people feel that raccoons are wild animals that have just wandered away from their natural habitat. This could not be more untrue. They are urban dwellers just like rats and that's why they are so commonly found in people's homes. Raccoons are also not dumb animals. They are crafty and curious and that lends to them moving around a lot and causing many problems for a homeowner in a short period of time."

Frontier Wildlife Control is a licensed and insured wildlife removal company that has been serving the animal infestation needs of those in St. Louis and the surrounding areas for over 10 years now. They do much more than just get rid of raccoons that have invaded their customers' properties. The company is also skilled at removing moles, squirrels, skunks, opossums, beavers and other animals from their St. Louis customers' homes and businesses. They claim that they never fail when it comes to finding and removing an unwanted animal from one of their customer's properties.

Bruce elaborated on why they specialize in so many different types of wildlife removal services. He said, "To be honest, there really is no such thing as a wild animal that is ok to have around your home. That applies whether they have taken up residence in your home or just come onto your property from the nearby area. Animals such as coyotes don't have to be living directly on your property to cause large amounts of damage and headaches for you. Our animal personnel have been specially trained to rid your home and property of just about any nuisance critter you can think of."

The company itself is based out of Freeburg, Illinois area. But they offer their professional wildlife removal services in a very wide swath of area in and around St. Louis and East St. Louis. These areas include Caseyville, Fairview Heights, Granite City, Madison County, and St. Clair County. For more information on them and their Raccoon Removal St Louis services, one simply has to look on their website or contact Bruce by phone or by email.

There is even a form someone can fill out on the company's website that will get a person a callback and a free estimate for their wildlife removal services. They also have a Google Map page that will show the exact coverage area that they offer their many diverse wildlife removal services in.
