Edmonton Real Estate Brokerage Announces Beneficial Services For Home Sellers

February 27, 2019

February 27, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

SellerInvite, a real estate brokerage in Edmonton, Alberta, has announced a range of services that are designed to help homeowners to sell their homes. The company states that their services benefit homeowners by allowing them more benefit with regards to their home sales. More on this program can be seen on the SellerInvite news page at <https://www.pressadvantage.com/organization/sellerinvite>.

Rod Thompson with the firm says, "We offer a hybrid service for sellers. Our reduced commission packages offer unrestricted access to seller sites and those sellers have the freedom of choosing the specific level of representation that they want."

Thompson says that under these packages, sellers can choose to have full access to a real estate professional or do most of the selling work themselves, which lowers their commission responsibility significantly. He states that sellers have access to the REALTOR.ca website which helps them to list their homes, and he continues to add that those who feel confident in doing their own selling can do so. Those who need more assistance will have it. He states that the level of representation from a real estate agent is completely up to the seller.

?The assistance of a licensed and experienced REALTOR® is very beneficial,? Thompson adds. ?However, we have sellers who do not need as much help as others. We have those who would prefer to skip the full representation and simply do some things for themselves. This helps by still offering them the assistance that they need but less assistance means a lower commission payment, which is a huge benefit to those who are selling their homes.?

Thompson says that more information on the process and the packages can be seen at <https://www.sellerinvite.com/release>. He says that with the influx of websites that are designed to teach homeowners to sell their own homes, the brokerage firm felt that they needed to offer some level of assistance, even to those who feel that they have the experience to sell on their own. He states that even someone who has gone through the process before may need assistance from a professional REALTOR® when it comes to things such as the legal paperwork, marketing and other aspects of the sale.

Rod Thompson founded SellerInvite in 2008 with the goal of helping sellers, as well as buyers, to make better decisions about the home owning process. He states that his firm remains on top of the latest technology and education so that they can provide their clients with the most professional real estate assistance available in the area.

Thompson says that the firm?s goal is and has always been to provide unlimited assistance to those who are buying or selling a home. He states that the firm?s new packages are designed to help sellers to feel more confident in their decision to sell. Many homeowners choose to attempt to sell their homes on their own in order to avoid paying real estate commissions. Thompson says that the firm took this into consideration and came up with a plan that would help those who want to avoid commissions altogether as well as those who may need some assistance throughout the process. Packages and their costs can be seen on the company?s website. Thompson says that the packages vary in commission cost based on the specific level of assistance that the homeowner needs.

Past clients of the firm state that the hybrid program has helped them to drastically reduce what they would be required to pay in real estate commissions, essentially putting more money in their pockets. Thompson says that for those who are looking to sell their homes and then purchase another, this extra money can be very helpful. Those who would like to learn more about these packages and the company in general can visit them on their official website at <https://sellerinvite.business.site/>. The firm urges homeowners to reach out to them to learn more about these programs. Contact can be made directly by phone or email.
