February 04, 2019

February 04, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Sightline Studios Inc. Calgary, a corporate video production company in Calgary, Alberta, has announced that they now have openings. The company specializes in crafting video campaigns for corporate clients looking to boost sales, nurture relationships, and get stronger financial results. Those who believe they can contribute to achieving this company's goals are welcome to submit their application. Those who want to know more about the company can check out their website at sightlinestudios.com.

Jason Smith, producer, director and founder of Sightline Studios, says, "At Sightline Studios, we craft stories that impact your audience and create a powerful engaging experience. In short we tell stories that inspire your audience to take action. We specialize in creative development of corporate film for the services sector, heavy industry, and the non-profit arenas. We help companies and marketing teams create and execute communication projects that are effective and powerful. We create films that sell your brand's story."

Jason Smith points out that the importance of video marketing in today's modern society can easily be understood because it has become impossible for people not to see a single video because they can be seen almost everywhere. From the computer, to the tablet to the smartphone, to shopping malls and other business establishments, videos are practically everywhere. That is why many corporate organizations are now using video for marketing and advertising.

There are many benefits to be derived from video. First of all, for video marketing, it is easier to spread content because a video makes it easier to explain everything in a relatively short period of time. Second, all that is needed is a camera to create informative content and upload it to social media websites or video websites. After only a few days, many people would have already viewed the video. Third, videos have a higher possibility of becoming viral. Fourth, language is not an issue with videos because it is possible to add subtitles. And finally, videos are much easier to spread worldwide because they can be liked and shared by friends, and so on.

Sightline Studios Calgary also wants to explain why businesses might want to create videos for online marketing. First, videos can contain important information and video makes it easier to inform people because all people enjoy watching videos and it is easier for them to absorb the information because they see what the video is all about. Video also provides a creative way to deliver content because it has several elements, such as pictures, gestures, text, and more. Second, people find watching a video to be more entertaining than being told something because they get to see something new and interesting. Third, getting information from videos is much easier for people because they are easier to understand even when there is a language barrier. And finally, creating a video is no longer difficult because of various applications that are available for free online and there are even applications that already have templates to start from.

Corporate videos can also help in improving a company's image and reputation. Video is very effective because it can reach to millions of potential audiences and it can be used to project a company's product and service range, organizational profile, and the reliability and quality of its customer service. Video has the power to generate marketing leads because it can attract and influence potential customers.

Sightline Studios is a small boutique production company in Calgary but they can work with anyone anywhere in the world. The company hires, works with, and associates with the best crew, talent, and creative people in the industry. They pride themselves primarily for providing value for their services. Thus, they have the skill, experience, professionalism, and determination to complete a client's video production requirement. The company was established by Jason Smith in 2008.
