Jo Smith, a Visalia Realtor has recently begun listing the properties he manages on Zillow. Zillow is one of the better property search websites available today, and many people have been able to find their dream home through it. Smith hopes that he will be able to help more people achieve this by listing through the property website.

"I have a huge amount of experience in the real estate market", says Jo Smith. "My goal is to help everyday people buy or sell their homes in an easy way, that is as free from stress as possible. I believe that every home should be a dream home and tainting this with a complicated, stressful purchase or sale process would ruin that dream."

To make himself more reachable, Smith has also started a Facebook page and he encourages anyone to add him as a friend. Most other realtors will have a page on Facebook, but Smith wants to make his relationship with home buyers and sellers more personal. He wants to enable people to contact him directly. Having an accessible Facebook page makes him more approachable and shows people that he is actually a real person.

A lot of people search for Visalia homes for sale on Zillow. It is one of the most popular property listing websites in the country today and for good reason. It allows people to easily find the property they are looking for, by entering search filters that matter to them. Zillow is also popular because it allows home buyers and sellers to review the different realtors that they have worked with. To date, Smith has received a range of highly positive reviews for his services.

"We were First time homebuyers, Jo Smith was a superb realtor in guiding us through the entire home buying process", says Wheir1975, who purchased a single family home in 2004 for approximately $200,000 in Visalia, CA. "We registered for his Email Alert System and received home listings through the email promptly. We found him to be very patient and enthusiastic. We enjoyed his low pressure style. Jo was very helpful throughout the home buying process. He was very prompt in returning our phone calls and addressing our concerns throughout the process. We were very thankful to have the opportunity to work with Jo as our realtor."

Indeed, the email alert system Smith offers, and his personal style are two things that have set him apart from the crowd. His customers consistently comment on these elements and feel as if they are working with someone who truly has their personal best interests at heart. Now that he also lists on Zillow and can be reached through Facebook, these positive reviews are likely to continue.
