It should be noted that because of everything he has accomplished in the last few years, both fans and collectors are eager to get hold of Tom Brady sports memorabilia. Furthermore, there is no limit to what kind of memorabilia people will want to collect. From trading cards to autographed footballs, from jerseys to sports gear, Tom Brady sports memorabilia is very much in demand.

Tom Brady is already a six-time Super Bowl champion, along with being the oldest quarterback to have ever won the big game. The demand for Tom Brady? autographed sports memorabilia will only increase in the near future as he continues to break record after record.

One special piece of sports memorabilia is Tom Brady?s stolen jersey. This jersey was involved in the game between the Patriots and the Falcons. In this game, the Patriots were able to make a tremendous comeback against the Falcons but the primary reason the media was particularly interested in this match was that Brady?s jersey was later found to have been stolen from the locker room. Later, the jersey was found in Mexico and was immediately returned to the Patriots. It is hard to determine the value of this particular jersey because it was never auctioned, but the general consensus is that it could have fetched a price of at least $250,000.
