February 14, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

The experienced tree service professionals at Sunnyvale Tree Leaders have made a statement regarding non-professionals trying to remove trees from their property themselves. They very strongly advise leaving this dangerous tree task to skilled professionals. The company cautions that each year in the USA several property owners with no tree removal experience are injured or killed trying to take down trees on their property. They also mentioned that non-professional tree removal amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars in property losses each year too.

Larry Usle, the spokesperson for Sunnyvale Tree Leaders, talked about why trained arborists and tree technicians should be the ones to remove trees on people's property. He says, "Tree professionals like ours go through rigorous training on how to safely and properly bring down even the biggest trees. That training is combined with hundreds of hours of actual tree removal experience by our crew leaders which there is no substitute for. We also supply our tree removal teams with the latest and best tree felling equipment. Our crews keep safety in the forefront when bringing any tree down and we are also fully insured in the event any unforeseen incident should cause property damage."

Usle went on to add that most tree service companies like theirs charge reasonable rates for their tree removal services. That alone should be incentive enough for any home or business not to try and tackle the dangerous job of tree removal themselves. He stressed that his company does an excellent job of clean up after the process is done too. They will even rough cut the limbs and branches for the customer to be used firewood. Usle stresses their service is a complete tree removal service from start to finish and they will do whatever it takes to make their customers satisfied with the entire tree removal process.

Sunnyvale Tree Leaders is headquartered out of the Sunnyvale, California area but they provide expert tree services to a wide territory around San Jose. This includes such places as Palo Alto, Santa Clara, Los Gatos, and Milpitas. A map of services coverage can be seen on Google here at their Sunnyvale tree service area overview. If after looking at the map someone is unsure if they are in Sunnyvale Tree Leaders service territory, all they have to do is call or email the company and ask. There are drop-down menu clicks on the website that will enable someone to contact them by phone or message also.

This experienced tree services provider does much more than just tree removal too. The crews at Sunnyvale Tree Leaders are often asked to remove the remaining stumps after they have taken down a tree too. This is a complete stump removal process that totally reclaims the ground area where the removed tree previously stood.

Usle says he also likes to remind people that some of the other tree services they offer like tree trimming and pruning are very essential tree services too. When done by tree professionals they promote overall tree health in any landscape and help any home or business look significantly better too.

The company even offers fast response emergency tree removal services. These are available 24/7, 365 in the event a strong storm or other unforeseen event brings down large trees or branches somewhere on a property where they don't belong. Trees lying on someone's roof or power lines are hazardous conditions that need to be addressed right away by a professional tree service. They have the equipment and personnel always available to quickly remove trees from driveways, roofs, power lines and other undesirable places.

Sunnyvale Tree Leaders has as a good website that will provide anyone who is interested with more about the tree services that they offer. As previously mentioned, their website also features a map of their service territory and several ways to contact this reputable tree services provider.
