Milpitas Tree Leaders provides professional tree pruning and removals in and around Milpitas, California. A representative for the company recently discussed the dangers that consumers could face if and when they choose to perform certain tree tasks for themselves. The company states that it is always advisable to use a professional tree service company for tree care in Milpitas, CA.

Louie Therege, a spokesperson for the tree service company says, "It can be dangerous for one to attempt to remove or even cut back a tree. This is a service that is best left to the professionals for safety reasons and also because many consumers have no idea of how to properly remove branches or otherwise trim back a tree. Not knowing can cause damage to the tree itself."

Therege says that the real danger to removing a tree by someone who has no knowledge or experience in the task is to that person and the property. Trees or heavy branches can fall, causing injury to anyone in their path or destroying or damaging property. Therege states that his company always recommends professional removal of trees and trimming when that trimming involves heavier branches or branches that cannot be reached easily from the ground. The company urges those in need of tree removals to visit them online at

The Tree Care Industry Association reports on the number of injuries reported that involved tree trimming and removals. From 2009 until 2015, the organization reported that more than 580 people in the United States died from accidents that involved tree trimming and removals. Therege says that this number could be lower.

?Instead of attempting to remove a tree, homeowners should contact a professional tree service in their area,? says Therege. ?These are deaths that could have been avoided, or at least part of them, if those people had simply contact a professional. Professionals in the industry are going to have the knowledge and experience, as well as the equipment that is needed to properly and safely remove those trees.?

Therege says that chainsaws are a common piece of equipment used in tree removals. He states that unfortunately, not everyone knows how to safely use a chainsaw and says that just because these items are readily available for purchase by anyone, this does not mean that they should be purchased by just anyone. Studies show that more than 100,000 emergency room visits between 2009 and 2013 were the direct result of chainsaws. Doctors report treating numerous injuries of different levels of severity, some of which led to death because the person using the chainsaw did not know how to safely and properly do so. Therege states that these are numbers that could be lowered significantly if consumers would agree to contact a professional tree service company as opposed to attempting to do these tasks for themselves.

Therege adds that his company has many years of experience and hires only the most qualified and experienced workers to provide service to their customers. He states that anyone who is interested in hiring professional assistance for tree removals can contact the company to schedule a consultation.

The company can be contact through their website at <https://goo.gl/posts/ccSyi4CKy6r> or directly by phone or email. Therege states that anyone who has questions is welcome to contact them to speak with one of their friendly representatives to have those questions answered. He states that the company provides general pruning and tree removals services, as well as emergency services for those who may notice tree branches falling toward their home or power lines as the result of a storm. Customers in the area can get a cost estimate by contacting the company directly and speaking with a representative. Therege states that the company will provide a project quote to customers, and he says that they work with their customers to offer the service that they need based on the customer?s time schedule and budget.
