The Law Firm of Steven F. Bliss wants those in San Diego, California and the surrounding area to be fully aware of their options when it comes to estate planning. This multiple award-winning boutique law firm is one that fully understands the complexities of estate planning and how their clients can best use this legal process to their benefit. The law firm believes that part of being responsible estate planning attorneys goes way beyond that of just helping clients make out a living will.

Steven F. Bliss Esq., the founder of Bliss Law Firm, elaborated more on how their many years of legal experience can benefit their clients as far as estate planning is concerned. Bliss said, "Many people have heard about wills their whole life but they are unaware of all of the different options they have when it comes to estate planning. That is where our law firm comes in. We like to present those that come to us with the many choices they have in the estate planning process. Our firm's attorneys are very good at presenting information about the complex financial matters and legal issues regarding estate planning in a way that is simple for our clients to understand."

For those not familiar with estate planning, Bliss quickly summarized what it involves. He says that estate planning is the strategic plan that someone draws up to manage the distribution of their assets upon their death or in the event they become incapacitated. Bliss also states that proper estate planning should include clients evaluating their different options as far as financial and tax considerations on their estate are concerned.

Bliss went on to talk more about why it's important for people to consider other options besides just having a living will. He gave the estate planning option of making a living trust as an example. He says living trusts can be very useful legal tools because they are a separate legal entity that has full legal authority on its own and can help one's estate entirely avoid the lengthy and subjective probate process.

The Bliss Law firm has posted several testimonials on their website that were written by clients they have helped with their estate planning needs. Testimonials like the following one indicate that they do have a way of helping their clients fully understand the complicated matters involving estate planning. David H. wrote in October of 2016, "My wife and I went to Mr. Bliss for our estate planning and living trust preparation. From my own research, I thought it was going to be a long, complex and difficult process. However, Mr. Bliss is extremely knowledgeable and made the whole process simple, hassle-free and economical! His work is very thorough and he took time to answer all of our questions. I would recommend Mr. Bliss to anyone who is looking for someone to set up a Trust, no matter how complex it is."

The attorney himself has over 27 years in estate planning and leading clients through the probate process. He also personally represents any client of his that needs litigation done during the probate process. A prospective client can even set up a free 30-minute, no obligation consultation with him to discuss some of their estate planning options.

This San Diego based law firm helps their clients with more than just the estate planning process too. Attorney Bliss is also very experienced when it comes to trust administration. He can help a client set up such trusts as testamentary trusts, irrevocable trusts, and charitable remainder trusts. The law firm even has an extensive background helping people through the bankruptcy process.

The main office of the Law Firm of Steven F. Bliss is located in San Diego itself. This map to Steve Bliss Law will show those who are interested in the law firm's exact location. They also have a satellite office in Temecula, California for added convenience for their clients in that area.
